COMMITTEE OPPOSES WARREN NOMINATION!

HUGE AVIATION MEET HERE SATURDAY, SUNDAY

Varied Program To Be Given At Glendale Airport By Numerous Flyers

Plans for the Glendale air rodeo, the first air meet ever staged in Southern California at which commercial interests and representatives of the United States army and navy have joined in advancing the common cause of aviation, were completed today and the complete program for the two-day meet and the big annual aviation banquet tomorrow night were announced.

The full programs for both events were given out by Dr. T. C. Young following a final conference with other officials in charge of the meet at the offices of the Chamber of Commerce just before noon today.

The air carnival and rodeo will open at 1 o'clock, sharp, tomorrow afternoon. The Glendale Drum and Bugle corps will officiate at this ceremony. The first air event will be the dead motor landing contest, when twenty-five flyers will cut their motors dead over the city of Los Angeles and will glide to safety at the Glendale airport. The flyers landing nearest a given line at the field will enter a second competition on Sunday to determine the winner of the joint Chamber of Commerce and city of Glendale trophy.

Altitude Contest

This contest will be followed by an altitude race when planes will climb to 3000 feet and then race to earth, and demonstrations by army reserve flyers from Clover field, Santa Monica. The altitude race will be staged at 1:30 o'clock and the army demonstrations a half hour later. At 2:30 o'clock an aerial relay race will be staged. This will be followed at 3 o'clock with balloon straffing, the flyer striking the most balloons in five minutes being declared the winner. Wing-walking stunts will conclude the afternoon's exhibitions.

Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock, victorious flyers in the dead motor-landing contest of Saturday, will enter final competition for the silver cup. At 1:30 o'clock relay races will again be staged. United States navy flyers from North Island, San Diego will give a demonstration at 2 o'clock. This will be followed by landing contests, balloon straffing and an ex-

SINCLAIR FIGHTS TO PROTECT FALL

Oil Magnate's Counsel Asks Liberty Bond Deal Be Kept From Records

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 13.—Judge John W. Lacey, 80-year-old "little giant" of the Sinclair legal staff, today launched into an argument to keep out of the Teapot dome equity suit testimony regarding $230,500 in liberty bonds that are said to have passed between Harry F. Sinclair and former Secretary of the Interior Fall n leasing of the rich Wyoming naval oil leases.

The burden of the defense objection revolved around their contention that evidence from bank officials relating to the bonds being deposited in El Paso, Texas, and Pueblo, Colorado, banks to Fall's credit was "hearsay evidence."

LOSE FORTUNES!

GRAIN MARKET DROP HITS DEALERS

Arthur Cutten, Great Bull Leader, Among Number Losing Big Sums

CHICAGO, March 13.—Fortunes were swept away in the grain market here today when, before 10:30 o'clock May wheat dropped to $1.71, 10 cents under yesterday's close, and the lowest point since it sold up to $2.05 7-8 late in January.

The drop carried July wheat down to $1.50 3-4, which is 6 1-2 cents below yesterday's close, and the September delivery down to $1.41 1-4, 4 7-8 cents off.

Arthur Cutten, Chicago's greatest bull leader, who is credited with having made a fortune in the recent rise in grain prices, is reported to have been long millions of bushels of wheat. If this is true he lost millions on the early break today.

Pit Goes Wild

The most sensational price decline in the Chicago grain pit in months came today when the May delivery of wheat dropped 15 cents during the day's trading, leading other grains on the drops which ranged from 4 to 7 cents.

The pit was wild with excitement. It was "Friday the Thirteenth" with a vengence and it brought ruin not only to scores of traders but to hundreds of farmers in the grain belt who have been holding their crops against the expected bull market which it had been predicted would send wheat to $2.50.

WORLD AIR FLIGHT LUNCHEON DISPUTE

Statement by Aviation Expert at Meeting Of Kiwanis Club Brings Forth Warm Reply From Commander Lowell Smith

By A. S. HALL
Of The Evening News Staff.

"The round the world flight was the biggest piece of unwarranted extravagance, an outrageous piece of extravagance and a big waste of money!"—PROF. A. A. MERRIL.

"The round the world flight represented an actual cost of approximately one-twentieth of a cent to each person in the United States."—CAPT. LOWELL SMITH.

Prof. A. A. Merril, head of the department of technology at the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, made the statement regarding the cost of the world flight, at a meeting of the Glendale Kiwanis club held today noon at the Tuesday afternoon clubhouse. The reply was given by Capt. Lowell Smith, commander of the world cruise, who was one of the special guests at the meeting and a speaker on the program arranged by Dr. T. C. Young.

Prof. Merril, a pioneer in aviation and a man interested in research world on gliders, attacked the world-flight plan in his address.

"The Liberty engines used by the flyers cost $4,000 each, and about seven were needed for each plane," he said. "Then there were supplies that had to be taken to various parts of the world. Naval ships were used in transporting oil, gasoline, food and whatnot. The cost counted up, the value of the flight was nothing compared to the cost to each taxpayer.

"If the ships had flown up and down the Pacific coast, covering the same amount of mileage, the cost would have been much lower, and the results would have been greater. As a paying and proving example, the world flight fell through. The air mail is paying, and making money for the government, the world flight took a lot of money.

"I have the greatest admiration for the men who made the world flight, and for the men who constructed the ship. If a person wants to hop around the world in an airship, it's all right, but it's a mighty costly proposition. But I guess it doesn't matter much, the government was spending the people's money."

Prof. Merril has been working with gliders since 1892, and told of flights made by gliders before the Wright brothers brought out the forerunner of the present day airship. The only difference between gliders and airplanes, he said, was that a perfect landing field was needed for gliders, and he stressed the importance of proper and frequent landing fields all over the country as a means of promoting aviation.

Capt. Lowell Smith, who had sat in silence throughout the address of Prof. Merril, gave some inside facts on the world flight when he addressed the members of the club.

"The air appropriation last year was approximately $13,000,000," Capt. Smith said, and the cost of the world flight was less than one-tenth of a cent to each person in the United States. The total appropriation amounts to about 5 cents per person for all the air work last year.

"When you take into consideration the salvage and the use of equipment and supplies bought for the 'round-the-world flight but not needed for actual cost of the flight is lowered to about one-twentieth of a cent per person.

"Do you call that wasteful extravagance? I don't.

"I take issue with Prof. Merril on certain costs. He said the cost of Liberty motors was $4,000 each. They cost the government $1,200 each, and there are over 10,000 Liberty motors owned by the government now which are fast becoming obsolete and will have to be junked, so the actual value is much less than he said.

"About the supplies. There are supplies and equipment being used in Philippine Islands and other places that were taken to the stations for the round the world flyers if we need them. We did not use all of them, so they are being used elsewhere. Our salaries would have been going on just

STATE BOARD REPLIES TO CHARGES

Again Warns Highway Work In Danger Through Lack Of Sufficient Funds

SACRAMENTO, March 13.—Reiterating that all new construction work on California highways will be brought to a standstill during the next two years unless funds are provided by the present legislature to continue the road program, the State Highway commission today issued emphatic denial of a statement made by Mrs. Nellie Brewer Pierce, lobbyist of the oil companies, that the commission has sufficient money on hand to continue road work during 1925 without an increase in the state gasoline tax.

The assertion of Mrs. Pierce in her attack on the proposed gas tax raise that "there is actually available for new construction in 1925 $8,985,365.59, or more than was expended by the commission for new roads in 1924" was branded by members of the highway commission as "a gross misstatement of the facts based on juggled figures."

The balance of $3,054,433.65 in bond money cited by the former state budget-maker is all obligated on highway contracts now under way, the commission affirmed.

Federal Aid Money

Replying to the statement that the commission will receive $5,464,591 in federal money during 1925 for road construction, the state road body declared that collection of this money will not be made during this year, but will extend over a two or three year period, with indications that a portion of the money will not become available until 1927. Practically all of the money which may be collected this year is already obligated, the statement pointed out.

"The Legislature must either provide new sources of revenue for highway construction or serve notice on the people that road work will stop during the next two years. There is no alternative.

"The only practical solution of the highway financing problem yet proposed is the two-fold plan of increasing the gasoline tax and the license plate fee," concluded the statement.

Couzens charged the treasury had been in possession of the tax computation since 1922 and had not acted until after he began to investigate the department. The assessment was based upon Couzens disposal of Ford Motor stock to the automobile king.

The treasury department has notified his attorneys in Detroit that an additional assessment has been levied against his 1919 income tax, Senator Couzens announced today.

Couzens is chairman of the special Senate committee investigating the bureau of internal revenue.

SENATE BODY VOTES 9-7 TO REPORT ADVERSELY

President Coolidge Is Using Personal Influence To Force Confirmation

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The nomination of Charles B. Warren as attorney-general was rejected today by the Senate judiciary committee.

With Democrats and the Independent Republicans combining against the administration, the committee voted 9 to 7 to report the resolution unfavorably to the Senate.

This action indicated Warren's rejection by the Senate for the second time when a vote is reached, probably tomorrow.

Senators Borah, Republican, Idaho, fresh from a conference with President Coolidge, and Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, joined with the Democrats in opposing the nomination.

No effort was made by the administration forces to bring Warren before the committee to reply to the Democratic attack on his activities for sugar companies.

The Senate went into closed executive session shortly after 4 p. m., to receive the adverse committee report on the Warren nomination.

Coolidge in Fight

President Coolidge threw his personal influence into the battle today to compel the Senate to confirm Warren as attorney-general.

Senator W. H. McMasters, new Republican from South Dakota, who voted against Warren on Tuesday, was summoned to the White House this morning and was closeted with the president for some time. They discussed the Warren matter at length.

Soon after McMasters departed, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who also voted against Warren, arrived at the executive offices in a White House limousine that had been dispatched for him. President Coolidge discussed the Warren appointment with him also.

Committee Reversal

The adverse report today was a complete reversal of the decision reached by the committee when it first acted upon the nomination a week ago. On that occasion the appointment was favorably reported.

Senator Borah told the president at the White House that he saw no chance for a reversal of the Senate's rejection of Warren.

The president is understood to have said that this information did not coincide with his own—secured from his lieutenants at the capitol, who believed there was a chance for the nomination to be approved.

This optimistic view was said

THOUSANDS SEE AUTO EXHIBIT

BIG DISPLAY TO SET ATTENDANCE RECORD

Visitors Enjoy Inspecting New Models And Watching Entertainment Bill; Show Closes Tomorrow Night

The Glendale automobile show was pronounced by officials and others today a far greater success than had been hoped by the most optimistic when it opened last week.

Last Saturday the first annual show opened its doors. There was a certain apathy on the part of Glendale residents in the face of the fact that one of the finest aggregations of automobiles and one of the best instructive entertainments had been gathered together beneath a mammoth tent at South Brand boulevard and Magnolia avenue.

By sheer quality of the auto displays the show has been gathering momentum. Each night has seen an increasing number of visitors. Yesterday and last night 3762 persons paid to enter the tent. That was a gain of 535 over the Wednesday night attendance and 1235 over the preceding day and night.

Crowd Joyful

Last night's crowd was enthusiastic. Milling around the $200,000 display of engineering masterpieces, it gave vent to its joy by heartily applauding Roy Biddlecom and his orchestra, who staged a special musical program during the evening. It responded with shouts of glee to witty "cracks" by Harry LaBreque, managing director of the show.

When Hazel Boyd and Willis West put on an eccentric dancing skit the crowd was quick to show its appreciation of the marked talent displayed. And when LaBreque, during the awarding of prizes to lucky ticket-holders, brought a stranger to the front of the crowd to give him "a pound of meat and a loaf of bread" in lieu of the new dollar bill that was displayed, the evening's pleasure reached is climax and the crowd shouted and cheered so that it could be heard for blocks.

The visitors were out for a good time—and they admitted it. But that is just the end the members of the Glendale Motor Co. Dealers' association wanted to attain. Show a man a good time, they philosophize, and when he wants to do business, he'll come right to your door.

Accessories Given

A number of automobile accessories were also given away last night by the motor car dealers' association to holders of lucky paid admission tickets. An electric bed warmer, donated by Biddlecom, was also awarded by LaBreque. The recipient of this prize was the momentary center of joyous sallies and jibes.

Up to the present time, more than 15,000 people have paid admission to see the show. Tonight and Saturday night, when dealers have rearranged their displays and placed new models on exhibit, the attendance is expected to show an even greater increase.

Tonight a concert is to be given by the auto show orchestra, led by Roy Biddlecom, and a fantasy, "Oriental Love Dreams" will be presented on the big stage by Russian dancers. Tomorrow afternoon there will be special attractions for the little folks, and free gifts. The night entertainment offers ten big vaudeville numbers with an added musical concert.

Last night the fun-making and entertainment on the stage was not the only point of interest for the show visitors—although without a doubt it was a focusing point. Every exhibit was given its due amount of attention. Dealers had all their salesmen on hand to explain the various merits of their respective automobiles and accessory displays. The crowd milled around, asked questions felt the upholstery, watched the gears in operation, asked the price, and nodded its head knowingly.

From P. A. Kelley, chairman of the show committee and Lyman P. Clark, president of the Motor Car Dealers' association, right down to the last member, all are jubilant over the success of the show. Last night proved that it has been accepted as a fact, with open arms, as it were, by Glendale.

ENGLISH COTTAGE OPEN TO PUBLIC

Model Small House Designed By Wallace E. Reid, Is Ready For Visitors

The model English stucco small house at 1527 East Harvard street, designed and built by Wallace E. Reid, will be open for inspection today, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Visitors are advised to drive out East Broadway to Carr drive and then one block south on Carr drive. The house will be open for inspection from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. on these days.

This cottage was built to demonstrate that a small home can be built which incorporates all the desirable features usually found in the larger, more pretentious homes, according to Mr. Reid. The builder also states that an extra factor of safety was maintained throughout by using two-by-fours where two-by-threes were permissible, the first floor and the roof having extra bracing.

The exterior is of ivory stucco with dark brown trimming, offset by white sash and screens. The drive to the garage is of stone and gravel, carrying out the English design. The floor plan consists of a large living room, combination kitchen and diner, two bed rooms with large closets, built-in bath and screened porch. There are sufficient windows in each room, making them light and airy, yet there is ample wall space, he said.

The sub-contractors were: Custer-Pesch Roof Co.; W. B. Read, painter, 5987 Franklin avenue, Hollywood; Bass-Heuter Paint Co., 1729 Highland avenue, Hollywood; Long-Dall Lumber Co., 3250 San Fernando road; Glendale Mixed Mortar Co.; Hoffman & Pixley Plumbing Co.; Layrite Hardwood Floors, and J. F. Ashcraft, Hardware, 4026 Pasadena avenue.

Auto Show Educational

In these times no one can afford to be without a motor car. Many people know they should have a car, but they are so conservative that they cannot get over the feeling that the ownership of an automobile is extravagant. The motor car has come into such general use in such a short time that those who do not adapt themselves to new conditions very quickly have not yet awakened to the indispensableness of the auto. This may sound overdrawn, when we consider the number of automobiles on the road, but, nevertheless, it is true. Many people who could well afford to own a car inconvenience themselves every day because they hesitate to be extravagant.

Especially should the wage-earner and the salaried man own his car, for the week-end is his only time for recreation and an automobile to take his family to the beach or mountains or just for a ride will more than repay him for the money invested. If automobile ownership is a form of extravagance for the workingman it is extravagance that takes him and his family out into the open air and brings them back with renewed strength, better health and clearer brains for the duties of the coming day. And a great many men have found the automobile a necessity in getting to and from their work, saving time and carfare and enabling them to take jobs they could not reach without this means of transportation.

The Glendale Motor Car Dealers' association is displaying enticingly at the auto show every make and model of motor car, and it is evident that the display has caused a number of people to reverse their decisions about affording a car. It is being demonstrated that we cannot afford to be without an automobile.

The Glendale Evening News has felt that the automobile dealers should be commended and rewarded for putting on an automobile show in Glendale and this paper is pleased to feel that the show is proving educational.

CITY REFUSES TO HEED FARM LURE

Increase in Product Value Fails As Incentive, Bankers Show

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, March 13.—The increase in the value of farm products has not promoted any movement "back to the farm." That fact became evident today on receipt of dispatches from bankers and farm loan men all over the United States. According to the National association of Real Estate boards, optimism has manifested itself among farmers. Sales of farm lands have been frequent but these have been sales not to city dwellers but to farmers who have seen a chance to improve their basis of output at a reasonable cost. Eighty-five per cent of the farm communities report sales of farm property more active. This is especially noticeable in the corn and wheat belts centering in the Mississippi valley. But these sales have not represented injection of new capital, nor do they represent speculation as they did in 1920. Prices in the older farm regions have not shown material advance.

This is a most un-encouraging report for the farmers, and since the farm buying power of the nation is a major factor in industrial activity, for the remainder of the American population as well. Reports show that about 50 per cent of the bankers in farm communities are favorably inclined toward increased farm loans. That attitude, however, is taken with a string attached. Bankers are insisting strenuously on variation of crops. They demand the farmer to whom they loan money shall raise a sufficient amount of foodstuffs to supply himself and his family without recourse to outside markets.

There is no doubt that the farmer's dollar is bigger and rounder than it has been in some years, but the value of that dollar for the purchase of entertainment still is less than that of the city dweller, despite the improvement and popularity of radio broadcasting. Translated into industrial movement, that means that the ordinary unskilled wage earner would rather work for 40 cents an hour, or less, in the larger centers where he and his family can go to the movies, have free entertainment in the parks and be within reach of Coney Island and its imitators, than to work on the farm where the net return for his labor may be higher but where the opportunity for spending that return enjoyably is less.

No real dirt farmer regrets that tendency. This country raises a surplus of farm products in most lines. The farmer's prosperity, therefore, is dependent largely on export demand. The fewer workers engaged, and the lower production, tend to stabilize prices and much of the gambling element is being renewed from farm operations.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Life is not going to be all sport for Baron Ago von Maltzan, known as the "Red Baron" because of his russet hair, the new German ambassador to the United States, who has arrived here to take up his work. He has a difficult job and he knows it—to create complete understanding between America and Germany. But life is going to be as much sport as he can make it—for in true American fashion he has realized, he says, that business must be tempered with play if it is not to pall.

Therefore, dancing, going to parties, walking long miles in the open will be as much a part of the life of Baron von Maltzan as attending to affairs of state. They will, that is, the ambassador admitted shyly, if Washington allows ambassadors to be so undignified as to play.

The new ambassador is graciousness itself. He is optimistic for Germany and he is glad to be in the United States. He has a charming smile and a pleasingly democratic way of shaking hands and presenting to his beautiful wife, the baronness, and their little daughter, Edith, all who greet him.

Mourns Ebert

Around the arm of his gray, fur-collared overcoat he wears a band of mourning for the late President Ebert. "Our president was a great man," said Ambassador von Maltzan. "His steady hand will be missed in German politics. Without him Germany could not have risen as high as she is out of the post-war chaos.

"But the republic of Germany will go on forever. Reports that there will be revolution and a return to monarchy are unfounded.

"The people are calm, quiet, industrious, eager for the freedom that only republican government brings."

Man of Contrasts

Outwardly the ambassador is a man of strange contrasts in personality. With his wife, a beautiful, graceful young woman who looks no more than 30 years old, and with his 5-year-old daughter, he is all the devoted husband and father, solicitous every moment for the welfare of his family.

With the notables he meets he is from head to toe the statesman, brilliant in discussing world affairs, interspersing his serious conversation with light and apt phrases and flashing smiles which hold his listeners completely. His English is excellent.

Prince J. E. Blayechettai of Abyssinia, East Africa, will speak at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night at Nazarene church, 417 East Acacia avenue, telling the story of his life and how he was converted by a Methodist missionary and sent to Oxford.

Rev. Cole To Talk On 'Ten Plagues of Egypt'

PASTOR GIVEN RECEPTION BY PARISH

Rev. Moon, New Minister At Christian Alliance Is Welcomed By Flock

Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Moon and daughters, Charlotte and Amy who recently arrived here from Oakland, were received by members of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church congregation last night, more than 300 persons being present to welcome them.

Rev. Moon recently was appointed pastor of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church, coming here from Oakland where he held the pastorate of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church for three years. L. W. Babcock, senior elder of the church board was in charge of the program. Musical selections were given by the ten-piece church orchestra including a medley of gospel hymns. Several hymns were sung by the audience after which W. A. Fisher offered prayer.

Among Speakers

J. F. Johannsen, representing men of the church and the church board; Miss Grace Scudder, representing the young people, and Mrs. D. C. Rexroat, representing the women of the church, gave talks welcoming Rev. Moon and family into their midst. Miss Esther Gliess, of Eagle Rock gave violin solos and R. C. Holland gave a tenor solo. D. E. Willetts, superintendent of the Sunday school spoke in behalf of the school and Rev. Leo C. Kline, pastor of the Central avenue Methodist church, representing the Glendale Ministerial association, gave an address of welcome from that organization. After the talk given by Mrs. Rexroat, she presented Mrs. Moon with a bouquet of red carnations. Mrs. Moon responded with a short talk.

Rev. Moon Talks

Rev. Moon then gave a talk telling the history of his call to Glendale. Rev. Moon stated that he had been an attorney in Los Angeles thirteen years ago and then went east. He said it had always been his desire to come to Glendale. Rev. Moon introduced Frank L. Muhleman of Glendale, who with Rev. Moon were practicing attorneys in Parkersburg, W. V., twenty-two years ago. They have been friends for many years.

After the program Mrs. C. M. Retts took charge and had Rev. and Mrs. Moon and daughters with Rev. Leo C. Kline, Mrs. C. H. Chrisman, Mrs. Zook, missionary from Chile, South America; Mrs. Bateman, missionary from India and Mrs. Umlauf, missionary from India stand in front of the room while the audience marched around and greeted them. They sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." Refreshments were served later in the social hall of the church and a social time enjoyed.

PLAN DENTAL CLINIC FOR SCHOOLS IN GLENDALE

CIVIC BODY IN BRAND PARK SUMMARY

Greater Northwest Society Hears T. W. Watson On Plans In View

About seventy-five members of the Greater Northwest Improvement association met in the Grand View school last night and listened to T. W. Watson, chairman of the Glendale Planning commission give a very interesting talk on the development of Brand park and better traffic facilities from the northwest section into Glendale and from Glendale to Los Angeles.

Mr. Watson said the planning commission was working on a plan which will extend Brand boulevard beyond Mountain street for a short distance and then follow the base of the hills towards Brand park, forming a distinct and independent route and entrance into Brand park. Another entrance will be Grand View avenue, and still another Western avenue.

The importance of Western avenue as an entrance to the park lies in the fact that this thoroughfare starts from the harbor in Los Angeles and runs practically through the heart of Los Angeles and continues over Griffith park, where it connects up directly with Western avenue in Glendale. In other words, it will give us a Western avenue from the sea to Brand park, where it would meet the newly extended Brand boulevard. Mr. Watson said the planning commission will make this recommendation.

Traffic Problems

Referring to traffic problems, Mr. Watson said: "It is quite feasible to extend Glenoaks boulevard north to Newhall Pass, possibly to the west side of the Pass, through the tunnel or possibly through the old original cut where the traffic used to go, and thence connecting with the state highway, thus creating an entirely new highway into Glendale valley, which would supplement San Fernando road. It is these through boulevards that will enhance the strategic position Glendale occupies.

"It is highly desirable that we have access to the main business

Three R's—Readin', Writin' an' Real Estate

Here they are, hickory stick an' everything. The accompanying photo shows members of Glendale Realty board engrossed in their studies just prior to examinations given last night at the conclusion of the first semester of the real estate course sponsored by the University of Southern California. Standing by the desk, rod in hand, is D. C. CASSELMAN, chairman of the educational committee, who has been "teacher" during the ten weeks' course. Seated in the foreground is PRESIDENT "BILL" TWINING of the Realty board and his famous cigar. Immediately back of Mr. Twining is PETER HANSON, past president of the board. At the far side of the room and toward the front can be seen COUNCILMAN S. S. GILHULY, seated beside LLOYD H. WILSON. The bad boy at the rear of the classroom who is laughing and waving his hand in the air is E. P. HAYWARD, one of the directors of the board.

EDUCATORS DISCUSS PROJECT AT BANQUET

Benefits Among Children at Long Beach Are Outlined by Dr. Frank Damron; Demonstrations Are Given

The foundations were laid last night for a school dental clinic in Glendale at a banquet held at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse, under the auspices of the Glendale Dental society, and attended by members of the Board of Education, school officials, Parent-Teacher association presidents and others interested in such a program. The meeting was presided over by Dr. C. R. Lusby, president of the local organization of dentists.

After a brief introduction of his guests, Dr. Lusby turned the meeting over to Dr. Floyd Hodgboom, chairman of the public service department, Los Angeles County Dental society, who startled his audience with the declaration:

"We feel sure that dental health work is cutting down the percentage of such difficult and serious diseases as cancer and heart trouble. Body hygiene begins in the mouth.

Dentists Needed

Dr. Hodgboom then introduced Dr. Charles McBean, president of the Los Angeles Dental society, who prefaced his remarks with the statement:

"There are not enough dentists in the United States to cope with the dental conditions that exist today. We must, therefore, teach the children proper mouth hygiene, so that the percentage of dental lesions will be reduced in the next generation, with corresponding increase in general efficiency and national health.

"I note the Long Beach Dental society is one of the prime movers in this work," Dr. McBean concluded, after an enlightening talk, "and I compliment the Glendale Dental society for seeking such a clinic."

Dental Field Day

Dr. Guy O'Neill, president of the Long Beach Dental society, then spoke briefly, calling attention to a dental "Field Day" in his city, April 23, when Dr. L. E. Ford, dean of the Southern California Dental college, will broadcast over station KFON, the Long Beach station. He invited the members of the Glendale Dental society, local educators, and all others interested in the proposed clinic, to be present at the beach city on that day.

The principal speaker was Dr. Frank Damron, past president of the Los Angeles County Dental society and a member of the Long Beach Dental society. Calling attention to the findings of the draft boards in the late war, he stressed the fact that modern civilization demands a sound body, as well as a sound brain.

Dr. Damron then outlined the work being done by the Long Beach clinic, showing that in one year the infection among school children had been reduced from 85 per cent to 76 per cent. It costs $108 per year to educate a child in the Long Beach public schools, he pointed out. A child who fails to pass the year's work therefore represents a loss of $108. Multiplying this sum by the number of pupils who can be made to pass through the work of the clinic, he showed that the clinic more than pays for itself.

Paid By City

Asked how the Long Beach dental clinic is financed, Dr. Damron stated that the City Council appropriates one-half the funds needed and the board of education appropriates the other half. Last year the total cost of the clinic was $12,000. This year a 15 per cent increase has been allowed, he said.

Following Dr. Damron's talk there were demonstrations of the Long Beach clinical work by three hygienists employed in the clinic there: Miss Edna Hatfield, who demonstrated the "Picture

Staid Business Men Turn Back Pages of Time and Become Students Again to Learn About Real Estate

"Backward, turn backward, oh, Time in thy flight, Make me a boy again just for tonight."

Seventy Glendale realtors who ten weeks ago turned back the hands of the clock to the days of yesteryear and once more entered a classroom with pencil and scratch pad, wound up the first semester of their real estate course last night, and, like the true boys and girls that they were in years gone by, their greatest concern when the examinations were over was—"Did I pass?"

Then weeks ago the first lesson was held at the Wilson Intermediate school. Seventy-one members of the board, many of them women, enrolled for the course. During the first semester an attendance record of 92 per cent has been maintained, of which the "students" are justly proud. Many times during the ten weeks busy men and women have put off business and pleasure alike in order to keep up a perfect attendance and avoid the demerits forthcoming to those who were tardy or absent.

Class Leaders

Just like real boys and girls, with a sincerity and simplicity that has been inspiring, have the realtors passed through the first half of the educational course. D. C. Casselman, chairman of the educational committee, has had general charge of the class work. Instead of having instructors sent from the university to supervise the lesson each week, the realtors themselves have taken turns at preparing the matter and presenting it to the class. Those who have acted in the capacity of class leaders have been E. P. Hayward, R. N. Stryker, W. T. Nimmons, James M. Rhoades, J. I. Wernette, Peter Hanson, A. H. Voelker, L. H. Myers and O. M. Newby. Members of the educational committee who have assisted Mr. Casselman are W. S. Kirk and George McDill.

Aside from the topic of examinations, commencement exercises, to be held when the work of the second semester has been completed, was the main subject of discussion last night. Though the realtors were fairly shaking in their boots from fear that they had "flunked," they were optimistic enough to discuss graduating exercises that are yet ten weeks away. A big blow-out is planned for that memorable occasion, when Glendale realtors will have the thrill of graduating, that is, if examinations of last night and those yet to be passed prove satisfactory to the faculty board of the University of Southern California.

Roll Is Called

Class starts promptly at 7:30 o'clock with roll call. Anyone entering the room after "Professor" Casselman has called the roll is chalked up with demerits. Absence also counts against one's record. During the first half hour the class listens to a discussion of the lesson by the designated class leader. A general round table discussion of questions and problems takes place during the second half hour. During the third period each realtor must take his pencil (most of them are too young to write with pen and ink) and answer questions based on the lesson that has just been discussed. Papers are turned in to Mr. Casselman at the end of the lesson and forwarded by him to the university where they are corrected. If, at the end of the course, the realtor has proven an apt and willing student he will be awarded a certificate by the university authorities.

Many interesting topics have been discussed during the first semester, among them: Real and personal property; incumbrances, mortgages, advertising and management of property, taxation, assessments and appraisals, escrows, selling, financing a house and insurance, and contracts. The last named was the topic for the lesson last night, with Mr. Newby as class leader. After he had discussed the subject and the difficulties were brought to light and answered, the test papers were written. Promptly at 9 o'clock class was adjourned and the boys and girls took their copy books and went home, light-hearted and happy to forget that they were not really boys and girls but grown-up men and women.

Daily Greeting to News Readers

TO HATE A MAN—
Is to put yourself beneath him.
Is always easier than trying to understand him.
Is usually to confess that you do not know him.
Is the beginning of suicide of the soul.
Requires less mentality than to adjust your differences.
Is to begin the wrecking of your own happiness.
Is to be as guilty as he is.

THE SLUSH FUND

The special committee headed by Senator Borah to investigate the expenditures in the 1924 campaign has issued its report, which furnishes no foundation for the accusations made by Senator La Follette that a huge Republican slush fund was being raised to buy the election in the west, of which the public would soon learn the "hideous truth."

But the committee made a recommendation that if adopted would be far-reaching in helping to prevent the misuse of money in political campaigns. The recommendation reads:

"A practice is now in vogue of collecting large sums of money in certain states and sending it into other states for the purpose of being used in carrying on party campaigns and in controlling elections. This practice may well become the subject of abuse and lead to evil and corrupt practices and results. The committee calls it to the consideration of Congress, and believes that in the matter of future legislation it should have serious consideration."

However, there is serious objection to such a measure, on the ground that it would make difficult, if not impossible, campaigns of education carried on to prevent the adoption of fallacious theories, that it would promote sectionalism and divide the two great national parties into forty-eight state parties.

The recommendation is opposed by the Philadelphia Public Ledger, which says:

"We have prevented the country going on a silver basis because those who believed in sound money contributed of their possessions to send sound speakers into all parts of the country to tell the people that free silver meant repudiation and national dishonor. And last year, when the Supreme Court was attacked by the radicals, who wanted to abolish the Constitution by indirection and make Congress supreme, speakers financed by money raised in the east were sent into the regions where this heresy was flourishing and did their utmost to combat it. The logic of the Borah proposition would prevent a candidate for the presidency from making a political speech outside of his own state; for, carried to its ultimate conclusion, it is that an election within a state is the business of the state alone."

PREVENTING CRIME

The activities of an entire state were required to quell an epidemic among domestic animals, but we are not so efficiently organized in matters that concern human welfare. James E. West of New York, chief executive of the Boy Scouts, says the remedy for conditions such as those which exist now is not through more laws or larger police resources, but through strengthening the agencies that develop the moral fibre and character of individuals.

When will we learn that prevention is cheaper than cure? How much less it costs to give boys the help of such agencies as the Scouts and the Y. M. C. A. than to hunt them for crimes, prosecute them in courts and then care for them in institutions. And how much richer is the world in manhood and human happiness when we prevent rather than punish.

Agencies that are organized to help and train the young for useful lives are handicapped because less than half the good they do is apparent. They may point you to some good and great man and tell you that in his youth he had Scout training or enjoyed the benefits of the Y. M. C. A. But they cannot give the other side. They cannot show you what this man or some other man might have been without such training. Any man who has the ambition and the energy to become a good and useful citizen might have used his talents criminally if his training had not led him into useful pursuits. The old saying that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure was never more true than when applied to crime.

When you feel impelled to ask what these organizations have accomplished, remember that one important feature of their work is prevention, and that no one but God himself knows how many boys have been kept from the broad path that leads to destruction through these agencies.

INTELLIGENCE AND COURAGE

Congressmen are not an impossibly stupid lot, according to Chester H. Rowell. He says if they would use the sense they have it would be enough, but so many dare use only as much sense as they think their constituents have and measure that by the stupidest samples. "All the intelligence a congressman has is not likely to be too much for the public needs," he continues. "To give less because he thinks his constituents have less is to malign his district and cheat the country."

It is a self-evident truth that it is courage rather than greater intelligence that our men in public office so often lack. And their fear of their constituents is nearly always ungrounded. The people, in most instances, believe their representatives are capable and would rather have them vote as they think is right than try to please everyone in the district. A congressman has a duty to his own conscience as well as a responsibility to the people he represents, and if he is true to himself his people are pretty certain to be fair with him.

When President Coolidge vetoed the bonus bill and opposed the increase in postal workers' salaries there were many who thought he was committing political suicide by alienating such large groups of voters as the soldiers and the postoffice employes. But his courageous use of the intelligence the Creator gave him was amply rewarded at the polls.

LAWS ARE CHEAP

Senator Stanley of Kentucky calls attention to a condition which exists today and which threatens our national life. In six years the English Parliament passed fifty-six general laws and 246 special acts. In the United States the fifty-sixth Congress alone passed 30,000 bills and resolutions and 17,946 are still pending. Note the difference and consider that the laws passed by the British Parliament represent the entire output of the British Isles, while those passed by Congress are supplemented by the output of forty-eight state Legislatures.

The senator thinks this condition of affairs sheds considerable light on the reason why law meets with greater respect and is more easily enforced in England than in the United States. Our country, in this mad output of laws, is sacrificing the thing that gives laws weight and force and compels respect for them. The wholesale making of laws cheapens all law.

DREAM ON!

Voting By Mail

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Mr. William E. Hamilton of Milwaukee has undertaking a campaign in behalf of mail voting.

He wants a statute passed by the state which will permit citizens of a town, village or city ward to vote by mail if they choose.

This would enable the plan to be tried out on a small scale before its adoption on a larger one.

Mr. Hamilton says that at present if he is sick or absent from the city he can vote by mail, and he cannot understand why he should not do it when he is well and at home.

The absent voting law protects the secrecy of the ballot and it protects the ballot box so that no one who is not registered can be a voter.

One point that is brought out is that the expenses of mail voting would be less than the present system.

For instance, in Mr. Hamilton's district it would cost $1,943.20 to mail each person a ballot with a prepaid return envelope enclosed. The expense for competent help would be about $100. The cost of the envelopes would amount to $150. Other expenses would remain about the same. So we have a total expense of $2,200 for mail voting, as against $5,363 for voting in person.

Besides this, it is reasonable to suppose that a larger number of people would vote if voting were made easier.

Under the present election law only about sixteen per cent of the potential vote was cast in Mr. Hamilton's district, and it is estimated that at least ninety per cent of the voters would exercise their franchise under the new method.

Voting by mail seems to have everything in its favor as a cheaper, simpler and more up-to-date plan than voting in person. The secrecy of the ballot and other matters have been carefully worked out and the postoffice is abundantly able to handle the mail vote.

Mr. Hamilton asks, "Why not use the postal service to make the exercise of our franchise more private and convenient? Why not bring out the stay-at-home vote; give us better facilities for intelligent voting, and save lots of money to the taxpayers? Here would be a good field for women to promote progress. Would not voting by mail appeal to them?"

Horoscope

Until the evening of this day the planetary government is rather uncertain, according to astrology. Uranus and Venus are both in malefic aspect.

So far as love affairs are concerned this year, Friday, the 13th, is a threatening date, making for disappointment and unhappiness.

This is an unlucky wedding day, since it presages many quarrels and misunderstandings that may end in divorce.

Uranus is in a place supposed to accent the critical spirit in men and to cause the faults rather than the virtues of women to be easily discerned.

This is not an auspicious day for meeting persons of opposite sex for the first time and is especially forbidding for business transactions between men and women.

Venus changes from evil to friendly sway in the evening, but they who are wise will not challenge fate by making pledges under this government of the stars.

Theatres may suffer from the rule which causes audiences to be captious and difficult to please.

Many new plays are to be produced this spring and if the seers are to be believed the best of them will meet with small favor while the worst of them succeed.

Changes in fashions are to introduce strange features that to the seeing eye forecast events soon to cause sensational news.

Again warning is given against selfishness and greed which will be manifested in women as well as men.

Vanity and consciousness of physical charm will be apparent in the mental attitude of many women who are to change for the better, owing to great demands upon them for public service.

The recent partial eclipse of the moon will have an effect in Moscow, astrologers predict, when tere will be changes in the personnel of the country's rulers.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of rather an uneventful year. They should be faithful in the discharge of all duties.

Children born on this day may have to overcome many obstacles in life and should be trained to self-reliance and even aggressiveness. These subjects of Pisces may be more successful in partnership than when alone.

Today's Poem

FAREWELL TO NANCY

Ae fond kiss and then we sever!
Ae farewell, and then for ever!
Deep in heart-wrung fears I'll pledge thee;
Warring sighs and groans I'll wage thee.
Who shall say that Fortune grieves him,
While the star of hope she leaves him?
Me, nae cheerful twinkle lights me;
Dark despair around benights me.

I'll ne'er blame my partial fancy—
Naething could resist my Nancy:
But to see her was to love her,
Love but her, and love for ever.
Had we never loved sae kindly,
Had we never loved sae blindly,
Never met—or never parted,
We had ne'er been broken-hearted.

Fare thee weel, thou first and fairest!
Fare thee well, thou best and dearest!
Thine be ilka joy and treasure,
Peace, enjoyment, love and pleasure!
Ae fond kiss, and then we sever!
Ae farewell, alas! for ever!
Deep in heart-wrung tears I'll pledge thee:
Warring sighs and groans I'll wage thee.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNAIRD

CLARK KINNAIRD

A York State gentleman proclaims that the world is growing better on the grounds that "social progress brings morality." He classifies peace under morality; hence he sees peace as an eventuality of social progress.

Tolstoi observed a long time ago that to assert that a social process produces morality is like asserting that the construction of stoves produces heat.

If the law of struggle for existence and the survival of the fittest is the eternal law of life (and it cannot but be admitted to be so when we regard man as an animal)—then no tangled discussions about social progress and an ethical law supposed to flow from it, or spring up from no one knows where, just when he happens to need it, can disturb that law.

Since social progress collects people into groups, then the struggle and the survival will continue among those families, clans, and nations, and the struggle will not only not be more moral, but it will be even more cruel and more immoral than that between individuals, as we see in actual life.

"Even if we admit the impossible, and suppose that in another thousand years, all humanity will, by social progress alone, be united into one whole and will form a single nation and a single state—even then," Tolstoi opines, "the struggle between individuals forming this union, and between the groups of families, clans and nationalities, will not be diminished, but will continue in a new form, as we see in all aggregations of individuals, families, races and states."

The members of a family quarrel and fight with one another as well as with outsiders, and often to a greater degree and with more venom. It is just the same thing in the state; among people living in one state, a struggle continues just as with people outside the state, only it is carried on under other forms. In one case the slaughter is done with bombing planes and poison gas, in the other it is done with hunger.

"If both in the family and the state the weak are saved," Tolstoi says, "that is not done by the social union, but occurs because among the people united in families and in states, love and self-sacrifice exist.

"And neither self-sacrifice nor love can result from a social process."

COSTUME DEPOT IS RARE MUSEUM

Western Institution Supplies Movies With Apparel Of All Ages

Where does Santa Claus come from? Where in Los Angeles would you turn to equip an army of 10,000 overnight? How was Nero, the jazz fiddler, dressed the night of the big fire? Who keeps Charlie Chaplin supplied with old shoes? Who furnishes the pies for one-reel comedies? Where do policemen and firemen get their uniforms?

These, and scores of other interesting questions are answered by a tour through the twelve amazing floors of the Western Costume Co. building in downtown Los Angeles. The Western Costume Co. operates one of the most interesting businesses on the Pacific coast. It comprises one of the most essential elements of the motion picture industry.

The Western Costume Co. is engaged in manufacturing and renting uniforms and costumes for every conceivable purpose. It was founded twelve years ago with the birth of the motion picture industry in Hollywood. It has costumed practically every photoplay of importance produced on the Pacific coast in recent years.

Authority on Need

When a new costume film is about to be produced, the director generally heads for the library of the Western Costume Co. to secure authentic detailed information on the dress, manners and costumes of the period and nation with which the play deals. The company has accumulated what is said to be the finest costume bibliography in the world. Often it is found that many of the required costumes are already in the wardrobe of the Western. Designing and tailoring of the new costumes required is often actually begun before the actors who are to wear them have been selected.

From roof to cellar the magnificent new building is a treasure house of antiques and priceless finery. Over 200 skilled employes are required to operate the many special departments—tailors, seamstresses, cobblers, saddlers, designers, artists, librarians, accountants, armorers, laundresses, furniture experts, etc.

Interesting Tour

A tour through the institution is more interesting and educational than a visit to most museums. Incidentally, the Western Costume Co. has accumulated the finest collection of medals and insignia in America.

But the activity of the company extends far beyond Hollywood and the motion picture industry. Although its principal business is in furnishing wardrobes for theatrical productions, it is doing an increasingly important volume of business in supplying regalia for lodges, schools, colleges, pageants and masquerades and uniforms for police, firemen, letter carriers, chauffeurs, hotel attendants, sailors, soldiers and bandsmen.

BURBANK NEWS

BURBANK, March 13.—The kiddies had their inning yesterday afternoon. It was "Kindergarten Day" at the Joaquin Miller school and each of the five local kindergartens demonstrated some phase of the work. The program was under the auspices of the Joaquin Miller P.-T. A. Mrs. Mary E. C. Groshong, formerly kindergarten teacher at the Milwaukee Normal school, was in charge. Many past kindergarten teachers were present.

Mrs. Frances Hamner played, Miss Helen Boughton sang a group of nature songs and Mrs. Angie Fitzsimmons rendered "Calling the Chickens," "The Windmill" and "The Big, Tall Clock in the Hall."

This afternoon at 3 o'clock and again tonight at 7:45 o'clock, a program will be given at the Thomas A. Edison school, through the efforts of Mrs. E. W. Morgan, P.-T. A. president. Clark's marionettes, the feature of the program, is one of unusual artistic and human appeal. There will be three small plays, "The Singing Master," "Doctor Faustus" and "The Bird Feng."

Mr. and Mrs. C. Monk and Mrs. Monk's mother, Mrs. M. Caminata, arrived here Sunday and are visiting at the home of Mrs. Monk's brother-in-law and sister, Mrs. D. McIntosh, of 445 Olive avenue. They will also visit with another sister, Mrs. George Pomeroy, of San Fernando avenue. The visitors plan to stay in Burbank a month.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Howell of 312 Tujunga avenue went to San Fernando the first of the week. On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Bledon of Pasadena and Miss Louise Howell were visitors at the Howell home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Whitson of Madison, Wis., who are spending some time in Long Beach, visited Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cornes of 558 Olive avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Doughty of Beaumont spent the week-end here with the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Doughty, of 835 Harvard avenue.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

The judges of California are going to clean house, if given the opportunity.

Pending before the Senate of the California Legislature is a bill providing for the annual conference of judges which at its first meeting shall elect a judicial council.

From this judicial council, according to Judge J. R. Welch of Santa Clara county, is going to come the reform of our present criminal laws. Further, the conference itself is going to determine policy in cases of collusive divorces. And in the meetings new methods and means of coordinating and expediting the procedure of courts will be formulated.

The judge admits that criminal law has reached a state where the lawyers defending the criminals have every opportunity to save their clients from penalty. He admits that the divorce evil is a shame and that criminal prosecutions should follow the evidence given in many cases. But so far the judges have been powerless.

If the judicial council becomes a reality there is going to be more respect for law, he believes, because it will be simplified to a point where swift and certain results will be in store for the transgressor.

California is beginning to awaken to some of its potentialities. Before the Legislature for immediate consideration are bills strengthening the blue sky law, the building and loan and the real estate acts. The better business element desires to protect the public.

But the real estate men go further and seek a statistical division of the commissioner's office to prepare authentic literature to refute the infamous articles published about this state, particularly in regard to its land values.

And the mining men are asking for a department which will certify after investigation the many projects in the hinterland which of recent years have been left idle because of too much law and not enough practical field work on the part of regulators of industry.

These are measures which have an appeal to the business man.

FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, March 13.—The Arden Players of Occidental college opened here last night at the Eagle Rock school in their annual play, "Enter Madame." The play will be presented again tonight at 8 o'clock. Under the direction of Ellen Haven Gould, this sophisticated comedy-drama that entertained New York audiences for months has proved again its inherent worth.

"Enter Madame" is well named. Madame enters, and exits, like a dazzling and somewhat disturbing comet. She is a world-famous prima donna, a spoiled, whimsical, glittering lady whose alternate tenderness and tantrums make up what might well be described as a comedy of temperament.

In order to better acquaint the Presbyterian mothers with their work, the girls of the Jolly Juniors entertained yesterday afternoon with a tea.

As a special feature of the next Girl Reserve meeting, a representative from Southern Branch will give a short talk to the girls on "What college will do for girls in the Y. W. C. A."

An Alumni Girl Reserve club is being formed by the girls who have graduated from high school and are thereby no longer members of the High School Girl Reserves. At the first meeting held at the home of Mrs. Dan C. Hege the club elected the following officers: president, Yvette Oldfield, secretary-treasurer, Mary Te Selle, social and service chairman, Anna May Monroe.

A regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Kimberley, 4624 Westview avenue.

Dudley Dickinson of Riverside, was the recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Swanson, 2373 Addison way. Mr. Dickinson is the manager of a camp at Lake Tahoe and expects to make the trip north shortly.

Mrs. Frances Rees of the water works department, City Hall, Eagle Rock, has resumed her duties.

Diet And Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Diabetes

Miss P.—I do not pay much attention to the treatment of diabetes in the column because a patient who has diabetes should be under the personal supervision of a physician. I am trying to prevent 75 per cent of the diabetics by my campaign against overweight.

In general, I can say that the foods that are high in starch and sugar must be avoided. Emotional stresses also must be avoided. Intense strain or emotion used to be thought to be a cause of diabetes, but now it is believed that they simply intensify the symptoms rather than cause them, for it was found that diabetes was not increased among the soldiers during the war. It was found, rather, that diabetes decreased in the warring countries, because the food rations had been decreased and overweight was reduced.

In general, the foods that are lowest in carbohydrates are as follows: the acid fruits, green leaf vegetables and nuts,—EXCEPT peanuts and chestnuts. The foods highest are bread, potatoes, cereals, legumes, macaroni and the sweet fruits.

We have a list of books on the home care of diabetes that I'll be glad to send you if you will send a self-addressed and stamped envelope with your request.

"Sway Back"

"Dear Doctor Peters: Enclosed is ten cents in stamps and self-addressed, stamped envelope, for your booklet on reducing.

"I am five feet, three and one-half inches tall and weigh 148. I have reduced from 170, but I have great difficulty in getting below 140. My face looks so thin when I do. I have what is called "sway back" and you know that means my abdomen looks the biggest part of me. Can you tell me how to correct these faults?—Mrs. K."

The last lap of the reducing course is always the hardest, because the last excess fat is better organized and more resistant. Then, toward the end when there is not so much to lose, we so often step out and gain in one day what it has taken a week to lose.

Probably the best way in these cases is to go on one very low calorie day a week, when you can take 500 to 600 calories of orange juice, or skim milk or thin soups, during the day.

Don't try to lose now more than two or three pounds a month, instead of a week. That won't cause any wrinkling.

"Sway back" means that you have what is known as a forward curvature of the spine in the lumbar region, with probably an outer curvature in the shoulder region. It is too bad that this was not corrected in childhood, through corrective exercises and correct posture. You can probably do a great deal to aid it now, by exercises that strengthen the spine and through correct standing.

Can't you go to some gymnasium and have a special set of exercises advised for you?

Muscular weakness is one of the chief causes of this condition and it is during the period of rapid growth and development in childhood that it is more apt to be manifested. Improper nourishment causes the same thing. The remedy, of course, is proper exercise and proper nourishment, and proper posture in sitting and standing.

A good fitting girdle corset will also help. Try on several at the corset stores and take the one which makes you feel and look the best.

Tomorrow—Answers to Mothers

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.a.s.e., if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Mrs. O. G.: "Mock Chicken Chop Suey: This can hardly be told from the real Chinese dish. Take four pork chops, trim, cut in small squares and cook with two small onions, sliced, without adding lard (as there is enough grease in the chops to fry this mixture). When partly done, add one bunch of celery cut small, one teaspoon of barley, and a pinch each of pepper, salt, and celery salt. Add about one-fourth cup of hot water to keep from burning, then cover the saucepan and cook slowly till all of the ingredients are brown and tender. Add a small amount of water from time to time as it cooks away, so as to keep about one-fourth cupful in the pan constantly. The barley looks like the Chinese "sprouts" and the whole is very delicious."

N. W.: "Filled Cabbage or Gefultes Kraut: Remove the outer leaves from a large, hard head of white cabbage. Parboil these leaves, without breaking them, then boil them with the rest of the cabbage in the same water till tender. Drain. Lay the outer leaves aside to use later, but chop the rest of the cabbage small. With it mix a large chopped raw onion, one pound of chopped pork, four eggs, two good-sized cups of soft bread crumbs, one-half teaspoon ground cloves, one-half teaspoon of ground nutmeg and salt and pepper to suit individual liking. Mix well together. Have a colander ready lined with a clean cloth. Place the cooked cabbage leaves all over this cloth, then turn the chopped mixture upon the leaves. Draw the cloth up about it, so as to make a round ball (which will appear like a head of cabbage when served, with the cloth removed). Tie the ends of the cabbage together with tape. Sink this ball into salted water, letting it rest on a plate in the bottom of the saucepan. Boil slowly two hours and serve hot. Sauce: Melt a large tablespoon of butter; add two tablespoons of bread crumbs and brown lightly, then add a little cabbage stock, a pinch each of salt, pepper and nutmeg, and one beaten egg mixed with a little sweet milk."

Tomorrow—Storing Winter Woolens.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

WAIST BENDING

The only trouble with this new mode for corsetless figures is that some woman let the waistline spread. It's like going without shoes, which may or may not be a healthy habit, but which will spread the feet. Never let the waist grow large, all lines of youth and grace depart when that happens.

I am not, and never have been, an advocate of the corset. It's artificial, it gives tailored, but unnaturally stiff lines; not even the finest boned corsets can lend real grace to the figure. Corsets are useful only when the figure needs reducing, or weak muscles need supporting, or when the figure is growing old, and they hold in the waist and hips to slender lines, or when it's hopelessly thin and they supply a shape that doesn't exist.

The newer corsets, which aren't corsets at all, are more attractive. I mean the surgical silk elastic ones, either entirely unboned or with a couple of small bones and a band of non-stretchable muslin over the abdomen. These allow the figure its natural lines, allow the body freedom of movement, and at the same time, if a corset or a support is needed at all, they will supply it. They will keep the waist from spreading, too.

Better yet, exercise, so you don't need anything in the way of corsets. Try this:

Stand with your hands over your head, arms stretched up as straight as you can reach. Bend, keeping the knees stiff, and touch the floor with your fingertips. In time, you can touch the floor with the flat part of the palms. Stand with hands on the hips, and bend forward, backward, to the left, to the right. Vary by swinging the upper part of the body around from the waist, keeping the lower part as immovable as possible. Practice before a mirror when you can, you can watch your progress, and you can see whether you are doing the exercises correctly.

Mary and Kate:—Unless there is excessive amount of falling hair, there is no need to worry about it. Some hair must fall out, and it is essential that it does it to maintain a healthy growth for new hair must come in, and the falling of the old hair makes a place for the new. If you are not having a new growth, you will have to stimulate the action of the scalp with daily massage and a suitable tonic several times each week.

Middle Aged:—There is no reason why you should not learn to swim at any age, and the fact that you want to do it, should be sufficient inducement.

MISSIONARY MEETING OF ATWATER SOCIETY

Delegation From Covina Is Present at Monthly Gathering Held Thursday; Benefit Program Tonight

A large attendance featured the monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the Neighborhood Christian church in the Atwater district when a delegation from Covina paid an official visit to the society yesterday.

The session opened with a luncheon meeting of the executive committee at noon. The luncheon was served in the church parlors, Mrs. Harold Thompson presiding.

Entertainment features and a short playlet given by the Covina women featured the social session later in the afternoon. Rev. George Elder, pastor of the Covina Christian church, accompanied the party to Atwater Park and sang several numbers at the meeting. Mrs. Harold Campbell was in charge of the program yesterday. During the meeting plans for the two-week missionary and development campaign to start next Tuesday under the direction of the state superintendent of missions, Charles R. Hudson and Prof. C. C. Purvis, were discussed.

Benefit Program Tonight

The Christian church is expected to be filled to capacity tonight, when members of the Young People's classes of the Neighborhood and Tropico Presbyterian churches join in giving an entertainment for the benefit of the piano fund. Young people from the Tropico church will stage a "womanless wedding" as the feature attraction on the program. Following this there will be a mock trial, presided over by Clayton S. Decker, teacher of the Atwater young people's class. There will be other features, Rev. J. W. Utter announced, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Masons Visit Elysian

Members of Atwater Masonic lodge met with Elysian lodge at the latter's clubrooms in Elysian Park last night and witnessed the exemplification of degree work by Atwater officers. Those taking part in the ceremonies were: Fred H. Chapman, master; Ruben S. Brown, senior warden, and James A. Herbert, junior warden. The Atwater members were welcomed in a short address by Herbert S. Waugh, master of Elysian lodge.

Lodge Quarters Planned

In order that he may proceed with the erection of a large two-story business block, plans for which contemplate fraternal lodge rooms on the second floor, J. R. Holcomb has been granted a change in the zoning of his property at the northeast corner of Perlita avenue and Glendale boulevard. The property was formerly in the residential zone. action taken by the City Council places the frontage in the business zone, thus permitting the erection of the building. Store rooms will occupy the main floor of the new structure with a lodge room 50x135 feet on the second floor, according to present plans.

Tunnel Under Boulevard

Water seepage from the bed of the Los Angeles river, which has harassed the work of tunneling under Los Feliz boulevard for the Glendale outfall sewer line, has been overcome by a large centrifugal pump now installed, and work of crossing the boulevard at a depth of twenty feet will commence shortly. Work of laying the outfall pipe line through the Atwater district will be greatly expedited by the installation of the pump, it was stated.

Bungalow Court Planned

A bungalow court, comprising sixteen units of three rooms each, is contemplated just off Los Feliz boulevard on property extending from Garden to Edenhurst avenues in Walnut Grove, according to an announcement by C. S. Decker, real estate operator, today. Plans for the large court are now being drawn up, Mr. Decker said, and, if carried out, will constitute one of the biggest building projects undertaken in the Atwater district in recent months.

Want Sidewalks Installed

Residents of Walnut Grove will appeal to the Atwater Community Improvement association, at the meeting of that body Monday night, in an effort to have sidewalk paving work in that district commenced at once. Over a year ago petitions asking the installation of sidewalks were signed and filed with the City Council. No action has been taken in starting the work, however, it is stated. Residents of the district also contemplate the circulation of petitions asking the installation of ornamental light standards.

Fire Trails Are Cleaned

A crew of fifty men from the Los Angeles park department were at work yesterday and today, clearing fire trails in Griffith park just opposite the Atwater district. Six new fire trails are to be cleared in this section of the big municipal park, giving added protection against the hazard of forest fire to the residential sections lying near the edge of the park.

Recovers From Illness

Miss Elizabeth Utter, daughter of Rev. J. W. Utter of the Christian church, and a teacher at the Allescendro school, is better again after several days during which she has been confined to her home with a bad cold.

Attends Club Meeting

Mrs. Lon Gardner, 3460 Perlita avenue, attended the meeting of the Five-hundred Card club, held yesterday at the Katherine Inn, with Mrs. Cora Johnson as hostess. After the luncheon five-hundred was played, with prizes being awarded to Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Curtis. All club members were present. The club will meet on March 25, with Mrs. Cora Leppert of Fifty-fifth and San Pedro streets, Los Angeles.

AT LA CRESCENTA

LA CRESCENTA, March 13.—Ireland's national holiday will be fittingly celebrated in the valley by the local branch of the Angelus Forest Protection association whose members will give an old-fashioned St. Patrick's day dance in the La Crescenta school Tuesday, March 17. The affair is in charge of the Pep gang whose members promise a good time of the Irish variety to all who attend, and ask the co-operation of the valley residents whose homes they protect, to turn out and help them swell the equipment fund for which they are working. There will be refreshments, good music and dancing.

Mrs. C. E. Culberson has loaned the use of her home on the corner of Rosemont and Michigan avenues for the ways and means committee to give a St. Patrick's day silver tea the proceeds of which will be used for the club building fund. Anyone wishing to donate cakes, candies or sandwiches for the affair are requested to get in touch with Mrs. A. W. Brown, Mrs. Louise Erwin or Mrs. Thomas Minford, who will have charge of the contributions.

Mrs. Zena B. Wales has returned from an extended tour of the Australian continent, New Zealand and Tahiti. Owing to the epidemic of meningitis in New Zealand Mrs. Wales was unable to land at Fiji islands.

The good-time parties held by the Crescenta valley Masons are becoming popular. Parties given by Eeastern Stars added materially to the fraternal spirit. Already the Masons have purchased fifty chairs for their hall, twenty-five others being the gift of R. Q. MacDonald.

Extensive plans are under way for the package party to be given Saturday night in the clubrooms at Highway Highlands. All are invited to attend and purchase a package, the contents of which will remain a secret until opened by purchasers. The proceeds of these parties will go to furnish the clubrooms. Bidding on packages will commence at 8:30 o'clock. Special music will be furnished by the Ted Campbell Serenaders of Glendale, who, with their six pieces will help make the evening a merry one. With twenty-five members present the Tuesday Afternoon club of Highway Highlands met in the clubrooms to study "Child Training" under the efficient tutelage of Mrs. Vernon Hall. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. R. Q. MacDonald, minutes of previous meeting read by the secretary, Mrs. R. Berry, accepted. The next meeting will be a dish shower when each member will bring dishes to leave in the club cupboard. Mrs. Paul Rodet was appointed second vice-president. Mrs. MacDonald appointed Mrs. H. Tate and Mrs. F. Hanigan, joint librarians to secure books on "Child Training" for perusal at the next meeting.

Tentative plans are being made for the following celebration April 1,: Easter sunrise services, picnic breakfast and appropriate Fourth of July celebration with picnic, races, fireworks and all the usual frills.

Friends of Mrs. Tama Alice Bennet, former proprietor of the La Crescenta pharmacy are informed that Mrs. Bennet plans opening an exclusive tea room in the green cottage just north of Montrose avenue on Los Angeles avenue. Mrs. Bennet will add to the attractions of the tea room a woman's exchange where home-made foods and other articles will be on sale twice a week. Mrs. Bennet will retain the Nettleton cottage as her home.

A number of friends of Miss Gertrude Drennan attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Lydia Whittock, at the Little Church of the Flowers this morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Whittock, who was actively engaged with Miss Drennan in the La Crescenta hotel until a year ago, had a host of friends here and throughout the state. Thomas Lee Woolwine of Los Angeles paid his respects. Beautiful flowers covered the casket, the last tributes from the large number of friends who will miss the kindly spirit of the late Mrs. Whittock.

center of Glendale and be able to reach same easily on main streets. In going back and forth to Los Angeles, it is essential in looking towards the future that we have roadways which will take us through without having to go through the congested business section of Glendale proper and over numerous congested railroad crossings. The plan under consideration of depressing the tracks from Dayton avenue north to the city of Burbank, has much merit in that the traffic will not be directed over a few streets but can flow over many streets by simply extending each street across the tracks by a light bridge. The city of Los Angeles has taken the matter up and will invite us to join them in getting the Southern Pacific to assign their engineers to the study of lowering the main line of tracks and presenting the proposition to the railroad commission."

A letter was read from the postmaster of Glendale to the effect that the mail service in the northwest section would undoubtedly be extended and improved in the very near future.

A letter was also read from the city engineer who stated that the plans for the improvement of Glenoaks boulevard were completed and being checked and that there remained only one more deed to procure. The prospects are that the resolution of intention may be presented to the City Council within the next week or two, as information has been received from the Pacific Electric people that they have about completed their estimate of the cost for lowering the tracks.

Mr. Randall, who presided at the meeting, stated that the City Council had appointed him on the Planning commission for another two years, and in view of his past experience and the fact that he is an engineer he felt that he could be of more usefulness to the city as a member of that commission than as a councilman, and therefore he was withdrawing his name from the councilmanic race.

Mr. Kinch reported on the activities of the Associated Planning Commissions of the county of Los Angeles, and it is his belief that this body of men would accomplish important and beneficial improvements for the county.

Davis Reports

Sam Davis stated that 3½ miles of the main sewer were now completed and that the entire main sewer and all the interceptors would be finished by this time next year. Contracts for all the work have now been let. "Instead of having to ask for more money, as some have predicted, the city will turn back $100,000 worth of bonds which will not have to be issued," said Mr. Davis.

Other speakers were Dr. P. S. Traxler, W. E. Howe, Col. James W. Everington and Mr. Seal.

Considerable discussion followed relative to the failure of the school bonds to pass. Mr. Seal, who announced he was from the extreme south end of town, said: "The school conditions in the northwest section are a disgrace to our city," and pleaded for a unified Glendale.

Col. Everington was appointed chairman of a committee to attend the meeting of the Republican club and report back to the association what suggestions or plan this organization proposes to put forth with respect to taking care of the city's school needs and other matters.

The regular chairman on schools was appointed to investigate the matter of requiring the school board to furnish free transportation for the children in the northwest section who have to travel from 8 to 10 miles a day to attend the senior high school and from 6 to 8 miles to attend the intermediate schools which teach from the 6th grade up.

The president announced that the association's executive committee would attend the meeting of the Southeast Improvement association on March 18th, in response to an invitation from that association.

The chairman on roads, etc., was directed to meet with the Burbank City Council in regard to the naming of Tenth street.

Mr. Brogan was appointed to look into the matter of getting a crossing for Kenilworth avenue over Glenoaks boulevard, which will afford a direct connection over the new bridge to Patterson park.

A vote of thanks was extended to Miss Jean Fitch, Mrs. Brainerd and to Joe Richards for the entertainment which they furnished.

BANDITS ROB 100 TRAIN LABORERS

Santa Fe Work Train Held Up By Masked Men; $5,000 Haul

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—Three armed and masked bandits yesterday held up and robbed 100 Mexican laborers of between $1,000 and $5,000 after routing their victims from their bunks on a Santa Fe work train at Wiseburn siding, according to a report to the police and sheriff's office. The bandits escaped in a closed automobile.

The holdup men are reported to have robbed each car of the train separately and several times during the robbery punctuated their actions by firing shots into the car floor. Two of the bandits held the men in submission with revolvers while the third relieved them of their money, the report said. The machine used by the bandits is said to have been registered to a San Francisco owner.

Featuring coats, dresses, ensembles and sportswear, The Fashion Center, Inc., 202 South Brand boulevard, is staging a showing and sale.

"The Fashion Center, Inc., has the largest stock of popular priced and high class ready to wear apparel for women ever assembled in one store in Glendale," said M. J. McKinnon, member of the firm in an interview today.

Coats in lightweight suede, flannel and silk materials in the new spring colors, with or without the summer furs, are on display. A majority of the coats are in one color with colored summer fur. One of the most beautiful summer coats being shown is a heavy black silk Ottaman coat, trimmed with yellow squirrel fur at the bottom.

Another very attractive coat is made of heavy black silk with wolf and skunk fur at the bottom. Other coats are shown in black satin with gay colored linings. A sport coat in the newest dictate of Dame Fashion is a rose sport coat trimmed with leather bindings and buttons.

Early Spring Wear

For early spring and summer wear, Dame Fashion has dictated that Milady wear lace afternoon frocks over slips of gay colors. The all over cut embroidery and lace panel front are also new modes for dresses this summer, said Mr. McKinnon. The new styles of dresses shown in the store for the slender women will also be found for a woman of larger proportions and many large sized dresses are on hand. Sports dresses trimmed with the single and double cascades of printed silk and some trimmed with baby Irish lace are very new. One dress also has a belt of suede with gold plated edgings. An afternoon dress is fashioned of pablo and black silk, has long sleeves and is trimmed with gold stitching. High colored scarfs and hats at The Fashion Center may also be found to match dresses in the firm's stock.

Afternoon Dress

An afternoon dress of conch shell silk crepe is trimmed with fagoting and pearls. A pea green morocco crepe dress is trimmed with white felt applique and is designed with long sleeves and high collar. With this dress is a reversible coat to match with Kasha cloth and pea green morocco crepe.

Ensemble suits in all the new shades are in stock and one of special mention is made of Castilian red and black silk. The ensemble suits also come in black and white and brown silk, the brown silk having a brown coat with printed silk dress. Printed silks are particularly good this season for afternoon and general wear. Many new evening gowns are being received, with colors and styles of all descriptions.

HIGH SOFT COLLAR SUMMER FEATURE

Spring Ensemble Costumes Of Corded Silk Are So Adorned

By AILEEN LAMONT
Special Correspondent to The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Small, high soft collars of summer are a feature of many of the heavy corded silk coats so popular for the spring ensemble costumes. Frequently these collars are double, expecially when the material is squirrel or fitch.

Simplicity is the keynote of the new lingerie now on exhibition at Selfridge's in London. One beautiful example is a Camik Niker set of Milanese. The top is absolutely plain, of opera shape, with elastic under the arms. The bottom is accordion pleated, with the hem cut in deep points. Ivory, sky and peach, are the color tones used.

The English woman is not going to abandon her sweater—not she. The high neck type is tremendously popular among British sportswomen in both the Fair Isle weaves and spun silk. In most instances the high close collars are fastened tightly with buttons so they may be worn open if desired. They range in price from three to seven guineas or about $15 to $35.

Sprays of osprey are among the most fashionable trimmings for the smaller spring hats at present. The latest Paris importations arriving today utilize the graceful plumes on the round crowned, narrow brimmed silk, satin and felt creations sometimes intermingling black and white tufts. Usually these are placed at the side, although sometimes they rise straight from the center of the crown.

The vogue of the two-piece jumper suit among the college girls of the country cannot be questioned, according to the leading American designers. The materials are kasha, wool, kashmir or balbriggan. The knitted garments of this type also have a distinct place in the spring wardrobes. Contrasting color effects are secured in the treatment of the collars and pockets.

Bootlegger, Undertaker In Same Role

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—An undertaker and an alleged bootlegger were discovered here today by federal prohibition officers operating at the same address.

Daniel Schaeffer was charged with selling "high powered" liquor, while the undertaker, D. H. Blois was held for conspiracy.

J. H. Randall Withdraws From Councilman Race

J. H. Randall, president of the Greater Northwest Improvement association, and a member of the City Planning commission, announced his withdrawal from the councilmanic race last night. Mr. Randall made the announcement at a meeting of the Greater Northwest Improvement association and said that the City Council had reappointed him on the City Planning commission for another two years. He said he felt he could be of more benefit to the city as a member of the commission than as a councilman.

INITIAL PADLOCK DRY MOVE TURNED

'Clean Up' Crusade of New York Federal Attorney Fires First Gun

NEW YORK, March 13.—Emory R. Buckner, New York's new district attorney, won the initial battle in his crusade to "dry up" New York today when Federal Judge A. N. Hand ordered that the La Fayette hotel of New Rochelle, N. Y., the first place accused by Buckner, be padlocked for three months.

Judge Hand found Frank Archibald, proprietor of the hotel, guilty of having sold liquor. The case, the first of its kind here, was heard without a jury.

SHAW PRAISED

LONDON, March 13.—Shaw seems to stand as a bulwark between the English theatre and mediocrity, as far as 1924 is concerned. If he lives to be 100, as he sometimes predicts, perhaps the oft-predicted demise of the English drama may be forestalled for another quarter century.

QUIZZ INTO DEATH OF INDIAN HALTS

Seven Members of Wealthy Osage Tribe Killed By Oil Ring, Claim

PAWHUSKA, Okla., March 13.—Friction between federal, state and country authorities, conducting what was to have been a secret investigation here into the murder of seven wealthy Osage Indians, was indicated today as the reason for the apparent dropping of the probe last night.

Secret investigation into evidence to show that the four had been slain by bandits hired by a ring of four white men who sought the oil royalties from land owned by the Indians, was to have begun yesterday morning.

Last night federal and sate officers departed suddenly. Following their departure, county officials said premature publicity by a prominent state official had given warning to witnesses and they had fled the state. They said it was necessary to postpone the inquiry indefinitely.

Information fro mstate officials, however, indicated the probe had not been dropped.

And in spie of the attitude of county officials, rumors persisted today that warrants had been issued for the arrest of four members o fthe ring.

COMMERCIAL PACTS

WASHINGTON, March 13.—New commercial treaties, the order of the day in the business world, are bringing about a radical change in trade practices and should be given careful study by exporters of the United States, according to Charles E. Lyon, American trade commissioner in London.

DENTAL WORK FOR CHILDREN URGED

School Clinic Proposed At Banquet Attended By City Educators

Talks" given in the kindergartens; Miss Alfreda Rook, who gave two of her "Mary Jane" talks to pupils from the first to the fourth grades, and Miss Thelma Osgood, who caused much mirth by leading the audience through one of the "Toothbrush Drills" she conducts in the Long Beach schools.

Dr. Arthur C. Meigs, founder of the Long Beach dental clinic, outlined the financial aspects of the work, stressing the fact that failures of Long Beach school children cost Long Beach $87,000 last year, and that the work of the clinic will greatly reduce this figure, by eliminating a large percentage of infection at its source, the mouth.

Others who talked included Dr. C. M. McCauley, chairman of the program committee, Southern California Dental association; Dr. R. A. Anderson, present director of the Long Beach dental clinic, and Richardson D. White, superintendent of the Glendale city schools, who asked numerous questions bearing on the success of the work in Long Beach.

Offered Elsewhere

It was brought out that clinical programs of dental education are being offered in the public schools of San Diego, Pomona, Long Beach, Montebello, Compton, Los Angeles, Anaheim, Pasadena, Santa Monica, Venice and numerous other cities of Southern California.

Dr. McCauley, the last speaker, concluded with the suggestion that the members of the Glendale Dental society form themselves into a clinical group to compete for the silver cup awarded by the Southern California Dental association for the clinic this summer. This would form a nucleus for a permanent clinic in Glendale, he said.

Among those present from Glendale, in addition to the members of the Glendale Dental society, were: Richardson D. White, superintendent of city schools; Mrs. A. A. Barton, president of the Board of Education; Judge Harry W. Chase, D. J. Hibben and E. H. Learned, members of the Board of Education; Mrs. O. H. Spradling, president of the Federated Parent-Teacher association; the members of the parent-teacher associations of the ten elementary and two intermediate schools of the city; Dr. G. Kaemmerling, city health officer, and Miss Helen Stuart Hupper, school nurse.

CAGE PLAYERS CHASED OUT OF TOWN

Visiting Tossers Refuse To Play, Fans Riot, Team Lost In Woods

PITTSFIELD, N. H., March 13.—After being chased out of town by 500 angry basketball fans, the crack semi-professional team from Hudson, Mass., today was reported lost in the dense woods of Catamount mountain.

The players were in danger of death from exposure unless they found their way through the woods, known only to experienced guides.

The Massachusetts players had refused to meet a local basketball team without a money guarantee at the start.

Spectators Riot

The local hall had been packed, awaiting the game. When the visitors arrived, Captain Desaultel demanded that the guarantee money be turned over to him. This was refused. Desaultel refused to permit his team to play. The refusal was announced to the spectators.

The fans poured out of their seats, surrounded the visitors and uttered all sorts of threats. Townspeople thrust aside police and a free-for-all began. The Hudson team battled its way to the street. They fled in a motor car toward Catamount mountain.

Driven To Woods

Following the players' car was a truck filled with Hudson rooters. The crowd turned attention to the truck, hauled the rooters from it and ordered the driver to go after the Hudson players. The players' car was found on the mountainside, mud-bound. The five players had disappeared, apparently having entered the woods. A search of the woodland near the high road was made but no one was found.

Catamount mountain is eight miles from any settlement, Northwood being the nearest community. No trace of the missing athletes was found in that town.

They were luncheon guests of George Kelly, the luncheon being given for leading dramatists and were also entertained by Josephine Morris who is with "Rain." 1925 INCOME TAX REDUCED QUARTER

Congress Will Pass Measure This Year Lowering Rate 25 Per Cent

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Special Correspondent to The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—This is the time of year when people have made out their income tax returns and perhaps they are not very happy about it, so a morsel of joyful news may be opportune.

First, the money being earned by the American people this year from January 1 last until December 31 next will be subject not to the rates of the present law, but to a new act to be passed in the early months of 1926 which will carry at least a 25 per cent reduction in everybody's taxes, if not more.

Second, sentiment in Congress is developing in favor of a specific reduction of surtaxes so that the highest rate will be 25 per cent as contrasted with forty per cent in the present law. Secretary Mellon has always thought that if the surtax limit were 15 per cent the government would get more money in the treasury from stimulated business than ever before, but he compromised on 25 per cent when he presented his plan. The Republicans have a working majority in both houses and can put through a 25 per cent rate and if there is a division in their own ranks there are some Democrats who will vote for 25 per cent.

Expenses Down

Third, Congress is showing a tendency to keep within the budget, Representative Madden, whom the correspondent met at the White House after he had conferred with the president, says that this year Congress spent eight millions less than the budget provided for and that the last four years a whole Congress has spent $350,000,000 less than the budget proposes.

Fourth, Mr. Madden says he intends to press at the next session of Congress his resolution which would make decreases in income tax payments automatic. In other words, it would require no new legislation each year for tax reform, although Congress would always be free to repeal the act or amend it.

How It's Done

Mr. Madden's idea is that whenever there is a surplus in the treasury of more than $50,000,000, that sum will be divided into the total receipts and a percentage be ascertained, which percentage shall automatically be the amount of every taxpayer's reduction.

There is some reason to believe President Coolidge favors such a measure, but naturally the people who think the relationship of one tax rate to another, as for instance, the size of surtax rates as compared with normal rates or the exemptions, should be reformed, will want that done before the automatic reduction would take effect. In other words, when once a scientific and equitable ratio is established between the different classes of taxpayers, then an automatic reduction simply maintains the status quo but gives every taxpayer an equal percentage of reduction.

FLYERS REWARDED

UNUSUAL MAP OF WORLD IS EXPLAINED

J. T. Edwards Describes Big Exhibit He Will Make For Coming Fair

The fascinating story of a butterfly moth, whose form and color gave a certain scientist the idea of cutting a globe in such a way as to form four perfect wings, giving an authentic map of the world, was told last night at the "Fathers' Night" program of Central Parent-Teacher association, by J. T. Edwards, Fellow of the Royal Geographical society, in whose studio at 5100 San Fernando road, an international map of the world is being made for exhibition at the Sesqui-Centennial celebration in 1926 at Philadelphia. There were over 300 school patrons present, crowding the auditorium and adjacent halls.

Mr. Edwards' story was most interesting. He said twenty-five years ago a scientist was on an expedition in Africa. One day as he sat down to rest a blue butterfly lighted near him. As he looked at the butterfly and studied the tracings on its wings, the scientist imagined he could see the forms of the continents. He caught the creature, preserved it, and sent it to the British museum. From the butterfly he developed the idea of cutting a globe in the form of a butterfly to give an authentic map of the world. Mr. Edwards illustrated his story by cutting a small globe in the form described.

Fame for Glendale

Much fame is promised Glendale in the great world map Mr. Edwards is constructing on the butterfly plan. The map will exceed Mr. Edwards' California model in the Ferry building, San Francisco, by over 10,000 square feet. It will be made entirely at the Glendale plant, and all notices, copyrights and publicity in every part of the world will bear the name of Glendale.

The huge model will be designed to enable the public to visualize at a glance the importance of intercommunication and trade between all countries of the world. Visitors to the Philadelphia centennial celebration will be able to walk the full distance around the mammoth display and will thus be given an excellent idea of the vast network of railroads and steamship routes which connect the continents of the globe. The map will show the future possibilities of both sea and air, international boundaries, types of government, cables and telegraph, radio stations, hydroelectric concentrations, navigable rivers and canals, volcanoes, climate and seasons, explorations and discoveries, exports and imports and other features. Special mechanical devices will show meteorlogical phenomena, storms, high and low pressure and how the winds tend toward the center. This international geographical model, based on the same scale as the millionth map, will teach a lesson in physical geography that has never before been attempted, it is believed.

Program Presented

Mrs. E. R. Ripley, president of the Parent-Teacher association, presided over a board meeting at 7 o'clock and at the general meeting later. Plans were made for a social affair Wednesday, March 18, at the Sidney Reeve home, 406 East Randolph street.

In addition to the talk by Mr. Edwards, the program included demonstrations of daily school work by pupils. Twenty kindergarten kiddies, the boys in cunning farmer suits, and girls in floral frocks, gave a short program of their work, under the direction of Miss Alice Livsey. Other demonstrations were: Phonetic reading, first grade pupils, directed by Mrs. Bertie E. Emery; new system of spelling, pupils directed by Miss Hazel L. Flynn; writing, pupils directed by Miss Ida O. Celeen, supervisor of writing in the city schools, who spoke on the Zaner method. The room count resulted in prizes going to Miss Livsey's and Mrs. Emery's rooms.

Special features were violin numbers by Miss Christine Edwards, pupil of Calmon Lubovisski; vocal numbers by Lucy Walton Williams, pupil of Virginia Freeman, with Mrs. Ripley as accompanist. Mrs. J. T. Edwards, representing the Shakespeare division of the Eisteddfod, spoke on that movement.

8-Year-Old Boy Victim Of Hit-and-Run Driver

Police are seeking the motorist who sped away last night after striking Walter Madden, 8-year-old son of Mrs. Elizabeth Madden, 900 East Colorado boulevard. The accident occurred at 8:15 o'clock, at the intersection of Colorado boulevard and Adams street. The boy was taken to the Glendale hospital, where he was treated for a gash over the left eye and abrasions of the left leg, and sent home.

Failure to stop after striking a pedestrian is a felony, according to Chief John D. Fraser of the Glendale police department, and is punishable by imprisonment in the state penitentiary.

PRESCRIPTION

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 13.—Eight hours' study a day, nine hours' sleep a night, and no lunch are the salient features of the program of Joseph V. Dempsey, who has crashed through three semesters at the College of Law, Syracuse university, for an average of 95 per cent, in his scholastic work.

Morrow Says Gas Bond Bill Is Likely To Pass

Prospects are excellent for passage of Senate bill 476, which will permit use of the $50,000 gas bond money of Glendale municipal district No. 6 for payment of principal on bonds now outstanding, reported Ray L. Morrow, city attorney, on return this morning from Sacramento, where, for the past three days, he has been working with the Senate municipal corporations committee on an amendment to the proposed piece of legislation that would make it applicable to the local problem. Senator A. B. Johnson of this district and Assemblyman Frank C. Weller of Glendale are both in favor of the bill, Mr. Morrow said. He also saw Governor Friend W. Richardson on the bill, and while the chief executive would not commit himself, the impression was gained that he was not antagonistic to the measure.

ROTARY SPEAKER GIVES LAST TALK

Dr. Barker Tells Fathers To Forget False Modesty In Boy's Presence

Dr. Charles E. Barker, field representative of Rotary International and noted lecturer, wound up his speaking engagement in Glendale last night in an address before 600 men and boys at the Broadway High school auditorium. Dr. Barker spoke on the relation of father and son.

"Every father of today should cultivate the confidence of his sons and not let the false modesty so prevalent in the world, keep him away from the hearts of his boys," the speaker declared.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Barker addressed 1100 students at the Broadway High school at 2 o'clock and spoke to mothers and their daughters at another meeting at 3:30 o'clock. Earlier in the day he addressed students at the Harvard High school and members of the Glendale Rotary club at their weekly luncheon meeting at noon.

Police On Lookout For Two Burglar Suspects

Two men, one dressed in khaki and the other wearing a blue work suit, are being sought by the police, following reports of numerous attempts by this pair to break into houses and garages. T. J. Keleher of 528 North Louise street and C. P. Altland of 1609 Rock Glen avenue reported attempted burglaries. A window was broken last night in the Glendale Auto Paint shop, 321 West Los Feliz road, but nothing was taken, reported Fred Grimm, one of the proprietors. L. Silverman of 332 East Ethel street reported theft of a tricycle from his yard.

LIEUT. WOOD SAILS FOR AMERICA

Has $2 Left In Pocket When He Boards Freighter At Spanish Port

By FREDERIC ABBOTT
For International News Service.

CADIZ, March 13.—After a two weeks' tour de luxe of Spain, the bills for which footed more than $200 a day, Lieutenant Osborne C. Wood, son of the governor-general of the Philippine Islands, sailed from Cadiz harbor on Thursday aboard a homeward-bound freighter with only $2 in his pockets.

The bill for the last five days at the Hotel Francis of Cadiz was paid by friends. His passage to Tampa, Fla., aboard the United States shipping board freighter Westchetac was granted by the London office of the shipping board.

Wood's gala trip through Spain after his hasty departure from France, where unpaid checks for 35,000 francs in alleged gambling debts resulted in charges against him by the Biarritz casino, has been the sensation of the Spanish newspapers for the last fortnight.

In Royal Suite

His quarters—generally the royal suite—in exclusive hotels of the five principal cities of Spain, have been stormed by armies of reporters seeking interviews with the youth they called "the world's greatest spender."

Daily stories with photographs of the young American emblazoned front pages of newspapers in cities he visited.

Because of his care-free liberality he was tagged by a squad of bootblacks, beggars, newsboys and lottery ticket vendors, with ready smiles for their patron and readier palms for his excessively large tips. He purchased scores of tickets for the government lottery which will be drawn today, a few hours after his departure.

Thinks Luck Changed

"Too bad the drawing comes after my sailing," Wood remarked, "because otherwise I might have some spending money on my arrival in America.

"I am very sorry the present Spanish government prohibits gambling because I feel my luck has changed in my favor and I am sure I could clean up if the casinos were open. Then I'd be able to extend my tour to Africa instead of returning to America aboard this freighter."

His superstitious belief in his luck has become almost a religion to Wood. He still is confident that the luck which made him a fortune in Wall Street, then turned against him, again will turn in his favor.

Likes to Spend

Just before boarding the freighter he astonished an old woman from whom he bought another lottery ticket by giving her $2 for a 50-cent ticket. He asked a friend to be sure to get a list of the winning numbers and send them to him by wireless while at sea, if he was a winner.

When the International News Service correspondent asked why he did not go to a cheaper hotel in his last days in Cadiz and try to save money for his return to America, Wood replied.

"I never worry about financial questions. It is always possible to find more if you know where to look. Don't you worry about me. I live as I please and my one thrill in life is to spend money. In fact, I much prefer to spend it than to make it."

RADIO MONOPOLY TRIAL POSTPONED

Year-Old Charges Will Have To Wait Two Months For Public Eye

By ROBERT MACK
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Radio's alleged monopoly which was to have begun its day in court next week will take at least another two months' vacation from the public eye. By a decision of the Federal Trade commission the hearing, which had been set for March 18 in New York, was continued until May 18 and the scene again scheduled for New York.

It appeared doubtful today, however, that the eight radio manufacturers and dealers named by the government as conspirators in restraint of trade would have their innings on the date fixed. The massing of data with which the Federal Trade commission expects to prove its allegations is still pending and still one or more important branches of the investigating department have yet to be followed. Great stocks of papers, comprising statements, affidavits and corporation papers are piled on a table in the office of Edward L. Smith, who is conducting the case for the government. And there is another stack or so yet to be obtained.

Year Old Charges

There is a probability, it was learned, that some parts of the testimony will have to be taken abroad. In view of these preparations and the activities of the manufacturers for the preliminary legal battle it is believed quite likely that the charges would not be fully aired before fall.

The monopoly charges are already more than a year old. The commission's complaint was filed January 24 of last year and the respondents given two months in which to file their answers. Delays were experienced when several of the companies requested additioal time for the preparation of their answers and the United Fruit Co., one of the respondents, filed a motion for the dismissal of the charges.

Besides the United Fruit Co., the respondents are the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., the Western Electric Co., the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Co., the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., the International Radio Telegraph Co., and the Wireless Specialty Apparatus Co.

CIVIC BODIES ASK FASTER SERVICE

Forty-Five Minute Schedule Requested To Downtown L. A.; Tour Made

Forty-five-minute service to down-town Los Angeles over the Glendale-Montrose line, with special service from Glendale junction into the city over the Los Angeles railway system will be sought through the combined efforts to the Glendale and Mont-Grose Chambers of Commerce, the Glendale Advancement association, La Crescenta Improvement association and other civic bodies, following a tour of the line yesterday afternoon by representatives of these organizations.

A Special Glendale-Montrose car left Glendale avenue and Colorado street at 1:40 o'clock with the civic representatives aboard. At Glendale junction another special car of the Los Angeles Railway Co., in charge of several officials of that line met the Glendale delegation and the trip was continued to down-town Los Angeles, returning over the same route later in the day.

Benefits Shown

The purpose of the trip was to demonstrate the rapid and convenient service that will be possible between Glendale and Los Angeles over the Glendale-Montrose line in the event special cars are put on by the Los Angeles Railway Co. to care for the Glendale passengers instead of forcing all travel to take the "E" car as is now the case. As a result of the trip, civic bodies that were represented will join in an appeal to the Los Angeles Railway to establish this extra service.

President D. H. Smith headed representatives of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce who made the trip. C. W. Ingledue, president of the Advancement association, led a large delegation from that organization. Theodore Belanger, president, and C. L. Mead represented the Montrose Chamber of Commerce. The La Crescenta association had Mark Collins, president, Dr. E. N. Nettleton and Charles G. Weaver present. Councilman Sam Davis and S. S. Gilhuly represented the city of Glendale.

Conditions

At Glendale junction the delegation was met by L. A. Racappe, superintendent of schedules and Dan Healey, chief instructor of the Los Angeles Railway Co. and G. A. Beckett, secretary-treasurer of the Glendale-Montrose Co. Mr. Racappe told the representaties of Glendale that installation of proposed special service to care for the travel over the Glendale avenue car line depended solely on the people of Glendale themselves, as the Los Angeles Railway is ready to put on the service if patronage warrants. To date, the Los Angeles Railway has not been convinced that sufficient patronage is assured, he said.

That rapid service is possible over the Glendale avenue line was proven by the trip yesterday, Preston L. Hatch, manager of the Glendale-Montrose Railway, declared. The trip from Glendale avenue and Colorado street to Ninth and Broadway, Los Angeles, was made in exactly 44 minutes, he said.

NAVAL ACTIVITY

LONDON, March 13.—The number of submarines building and projected in the various naval programs of the powers signatory to the Washington treaty is 138.

FRIDAY, 13th

Glendale builders may not be superstitious—and then again they may be. Whether or not the fear of the jinx kept them away, at any rate, not one single building permit was taken out up to noon today, reported H. C. Vandewater, building superintendent. Last night the total for March stood $415,676 and for the year $1,684,771. Glendale builders, it would seem, don't want to take any chances with unlucky numbers.

The first hoodoo accident of Friday, the "unlucky" thirteenth, occurred this morning at Central avenue and Windsor road, when cars driven by E. C. Hollins of 1026 San Rafael avenue and C. M. Traver of Montrose, collided. No one was injured, according to a police report, but a brisk business was created for at least two garages.

Friday the thirteenth is going to be a mighty unlucky occasion for at least five boxers, when the American Legion boxing show is staged tonight as part of the entertainment program planned for delegates from posts in the thirty-second district.

There were no nomination petitions sought at the office of City Clerk A. J. Van Wie today. Perhaps prospective candidates think they will have a hard enough time to get into the council chamber without tempting disaster by starting on Friday and the thirteenth, at that.

Fear and superstitution have no place in the vocabulary of an aviator, but just the same the dates for the mammoth aerial rodeo at the Glendale airport was purposely chosen so as to avoid starting on Friday, the thirteenth.

The record piled up by the Glendale High school heavyweight track team may meet with hard luck this afternoon, for South Pasadena tracksters will invade Broadway field. However, the Dynamiters feel that the hard luck will hang around the camp of the visitors.

Would-be builders went light on securing building permits at the office of H. C. Vandewater, building superintendent, today. But there will be more permits tomorrow, officials declare.

Five persons who contemplated a trip over the Union Pacific to eastern points, will not start until tomorrow, although they secured tickets and made necessary reservations today, C. A. Edmond, city passenger agent for the Union Pacific, reports today. Very few travelers start on Friday, anyway, he said, and inasmuch as today is the thirteenth, there will be smaller chances of any trips being started.

Forest Fires In Japan Cause Enormous Loss

LEAGUE QUITS IN FORCING PROTOCOL

World Peace Issue Delayed Until September When Britain Opposes

GENEVA, March 13.—The Council of the League of Nations clung tenaciously to its protocol with which it hopes to assure world peace when it unanimously adopted a resolution today to adjourn discussion of the proposal until the meeting of the assembly in September.

The protocol will remain in status quo as the council adopted a resolution to cease all preparations to carry out the protocol until the September assembly.

The resolution was offered by Dr. Benes, foreign minister of Czecho-Slovakia, who made an impassioned plea for the protocol for the protection of small countries, who he said, were "worn out with the ceaseless search for adequate guarantees for their security."

The address of the Slovakian delegate was in reply to the rejection of the pact yesterday by Great Britain.

Canada Rejects

Canada today supported the stand of Great Britain on the Geneva peace plan when it cabled the League of Nations a rejection of the proposed security protocol.

The cablegram was signed by Mackenzie King, premier of Canada. It said that the dominion preferred the submission of all issues to a joint inquiry board of arbitration rather than the protocols submitted by the league. The text of the Canadian cablegram follows:

"While Canada continues wholeheartedly to support the league, it is doubtful if it is in the interest of Canada or of the British empire or of the league itself to recommend to Parliament adherence to the protocol under the rigid provisions of economic and military sanctions.

Canadian Proposal

"Canada prefers the submission of all issues to a joint inquiry arbitration board and is also willing to consider acceptance of compulsory arbitration of the permanent Hague tribunal, under certain reservations.

"Canada will accept participation in an armament reduction conference providing the conference does not involve any prior acceptance of the protocol."

Judiciary Committee Votes Against Warren

to have been predicated on the belief, held by a few administration senators, that Senators Norbeck and McMasters of South Dakota could be prevailed upon to swing their support to Warren.

An adverse report on the nomination of Charles Beecher Warren as attorney-general was laid before the Senate in executive session this afternoon by the Senate judiciary committee.

The report was submitted by Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, who bitterly opposed the Warren nomination before it was rejected the first time by the Senate.

The committee earlier in the day decided 9 to 7 to make an unfavorable report on Warren.

Under the Senate rules, the nomination goes over until tomorrow when a vote probably will be taken.

Polls taken late this afternoon indicated the Warren nomination would again be rejected by the Senate.

The possibility that Warren will get a recess appointment if the Senate again votes against him, was suggested in high administration circles this afternoon.

The nomination will come before the Senate for debate at 11 a. m. tomorrow under agreement reached this afternoon.

President Coolidge was represented as feeling that Warren had not had a fair chance to have his qualifications presented to the Senate before he was defeated the first time, and he is hopeful that the decision of the Senate will be reversed on the next vote.

the same, so there was nothing spent there out of the way.

"The navy ships would have been in maneuvers or used elsewhere, so that was no additional cost. We showed the other nations of the world that we could do it, and that alone was worth the entire cost of the trip."

Capt. Smith touched on a delicate subject in aviation today—that of a unified air service in the United States. He came out strong for the principles advanced by Brig.-Gen. Mitchell in the recent air investigations.

"The only way a strong air service in the United States can be developed, will be along the lines recommended by Gen. Mitchell," he said. "There is too much duplication now. The army, navy, air mail and marine air corps are all competing with each other.

MORE

"The government has subsidized every means of transportation in the United States except aviation. They have looked after railroads, steamship lines and every other means of transportation on land and sea but have not taken care of the air transportation.

"A separate air force is needed in the United States. A strong air force can be developed by the promotion of commercial aviation and the proper encouragement to reserve air forces."

Capt. Smith answered a number of questions concerning the world flight after he had finished his main address. He said the reception tendered the flyers in Japan, coming as it did right after the signing of the exclusion bill, was more than they had expected. The Japanese flyers lack creative ability in air work, he said, and predicted that if ever an American and Japanese aerial force clashed, it would result in a victory for the Americans if they pulled some surprise stuff that the Japanese had not been able to copy.

"In closing," said Captain Smith, "my only hope is that the government will get behind aviation as strong as Glendale has backed the Chamber of Commerce in this aerial rodeo which opens tomorrow."

Dr. Young, in announcing plans for the aerial rodeo tomorrow, said the meet would start at 1 o'clock, but at 12:45 o'clock a couple would be married above Brand and Broadway at an altitude of 3000 feet.

Glendale Airport

There has been approximately 10,000 flights, covering 250,000 miles, made from the Glendale airport in the last two years, said W. B. Kinner, head of the airport corporation which bears his name. This record is exclusive of army and navy flyers, he said. No local flyer has been injured during that time, he said, indicating the Glendale airport is a safe field.

Speaking on the safety features of airport construction today, Mr. Kinner said ships are built eight times stronger than necessary. The average ship will glide eight miles for every mile of altitude with a dead motor, while the light ships will glide twelve miles for each mile of altitude, he said.

Arthur Slate, inventor of Aerial radio, told the members some of the incidents connected with the perfecting of a suitable device for sending radio messages from a ship to the ground. He said he intended to work further on his 'hobby' at the Glendale airport and expected to fly a Glendale made airplane.

Attendance Prize

The community singing was led by Ole Andresen with Mrs. George Lyons at the piano. The attendance prize, a Willard radio battery, donated by Henry Kuhn, was won by W. C. Winkler,. Fred Deal drew a ticket for a ride in Dr. T. C. Young's aeroplane. Jesse Smith announced members would bring their wives next week, and a Retail Merchants' day would be held with twenty-four special prices.

Delegates to the international convention will be chosen next week. President Fox announced. The attendance contest, which started last week, showed a 100-percentage beginning, Secretary Burton McGinnis reported. There were 115 members and guests present today.

Threatened Expulsion of All Church Synods Stirs Athens Statesmen

LONDON, March 13. — Fresh trouble between Greece and Turkey threatens, according to advices from Athens today.

It was reported the Turkish government threatens to expel tomorrow all synod metropolitans of the Greek church, giving the reason that the ecumenical patriarch has refused to resign.

The expulsion of the ecumenical patriarch from Constantinople was nearly the cause of a breach between Turkey and Greece a month ago.

Turkish attention was diverted by the Kurdestan rebellion, which still is in progress. The difference will come before the League of Nations council in session in Geneva this week.

India has snow in the hill sections in January and warm clothing such as worn in our northern states is required.

"Is she innocent or guilty, do you mean?"

Graham nodded. The question he had been tacitly asking himself all the evening was put at last into bald words.

Flint pondered a moment and whistled "Home, Sweet Home" softly through his teeth, as his habit was when pondering. Different tunes, with Flint, expressed different states of mind; one came to listen for them as one does for the motifs in a Wagner opera.

"I don't know," he said at last. "Mrs. Hurst puzzles me. Her story is ridiculous; it doesn't hang together, and her manner makes me suspicious, and yet—"

"Exactly," chimed in Graham, "and yet—! That is the way I feel—'and yet.' About the bloodstain on her sleeve now, would you consider that one of the obvious things which you would put through the third degree before you accepted it as evidence against her?"

"Well, I'd wait a good while before accusing her of murder on such evidence, but I wouldn't say that she didn't know a lot about it. That story of hers isn't credible; it's not in character. No woman of Mrs. Hurst's type is going to get up from a sick-bed to try how her diamonds look with a new dress—not on your life! A new dress is an everyday affair with women like her, and so are diamonds. No, Mr. Graham, she didn't take out that necklace for any trying on. And that extraordinary panic which she says seized her when she found her husband dead? If I read Mrs. Hurst right, she isn't a woman to lose her head like that. A weak goose of a woman might run out into the street at the sight of a dead man, but she'd run out shrieking. No, according to Mrs. Hurst's story, she was acting out of character right along."

Graham's heart sank. "But do people always act in character, as you express it?"

"They do unless they're play-acting, and they don't bother to do that unless they have an audience. Now, Mrs. Hurst was alone in the house with no audience, so she didn't have to play-act. No; it was something more than the sight of blood that sent her flying out of the house. Just what it was is up to me to find out."

Anxious as Graham was that his interest in Evadne should not be guessed, the perilous joy of talking about her drew him as the flame draws the fascinated moth. "Of course, I don't know Mrs. Hurst at all," he said, "but she doesn't seem the sort of woman I'd connect with a crime like murder."

"As to that, you can't tell," pronounced Flint. "I've known them to look like angels and yet do things you'd shudder at. I wouldn't be sure to this day of not making a mistake about a woman."

The night air seemed to grow suddenly colder. Graham shivered. A vision of his cousin's bracelet lying on the dressing table in Evadne's bedroom flashed before his eyes.

"Well, I turn off here," said Flint. The two men stood for a moment on the corner of the street, exchanging a last word. A shadow which had moved as they moved, now vanishing, now reappearing, as if swayed by the wind, halted, too, and melted into other shadows.

"I'm no end grateful to you for letting me in on this," said Graham. "I feel as excited as if I were in for a great adventure. I can hardly wait till tomorrow to know whether anything is gone from that safe."

"I shall expect you early then," laughed Flint. "Perhaps I'll have traced the call at Colonel Sanford's house by that time, too."

With a farewell nod, Graham continued his way uptown, while Flint turned westward. The electric light on the corner had burned out. That, and the darkened windows stretching away in long rows, gave one a sense of secrecy, of sleep, of lights turned low, of clutching hands relaxed, of keen, wary minds off guard. A brief "Truce of God," one felt was being kept by struggling, competing, contending humanity. One light, in a window far down the street, watched; and this sole evidence of life seemed, curiously enough, to hint at death and desolation.

Flint walked softly in the silence; more softly still followed the shadow. Nearer and nearer it stole closer and closer, almost at his heels.

Graham meanwhile, his hands thrust deep down in the pockets temporarily his, strode briskly homeward. A sudden thought brought him to an abrupt stand, however, before he had covered more than a few yards.

"I didn't ask Flint where I was to meet him tomorrow," he thought. "Wonder if I can catch him!"

HOW TO SOLVE THE CROSS WORD PUZZLE

The way to solve the Cross Word Puzzle is to fill in the white squares of the diagram with the words which agree with the accompanying definitions. The definitions are numbered to correspond with the numbers on the diagram. Any word defined in the text under "HORIZONTAL" will begin at its number, shown on the diagram, and will extend all the way across to the first black space to the right of that number. That is, the word must begin in the square that contains its identifying number, and extend as far as the white squares continue uninterruptedly. Any word defined under "VERTICAL" will also begin in the white space that contains its number, but will extend downward as far as the white spaces remain uninterruptedly.

THE GLENDALE

F. Scott Ftizgerald, whose novels, "This Side of Paradise" and "The Beautiful and Damned" won him fame, is the author of "Grit," the strong photodrama featuring Glenn Hunter, that opens today at the Glendale theatre. The picture is a production of the Film Guild, that clever group of college men who have scored such triumphs in "Second Fiddle," "Puritan Passions" and other photoplays.

Today will be seen, and heard as well, the Trojan Glee club of twenty-four collegians from the University of Southern California, one of the snappiest musical aggregations in the southwest. Today and Saturday Manager William A. Howe of the Glendale theatre will offer five Orpheum acts sent out by the Western Vaudeville Managers' association.

A pleasing couple, Ray and Edna Tracy, will present "Piano Eccentricities." Their clean, easy performance, all of which is original, has stamped them as an unusual pair. The Bimbos bill themselves as "Comedy Acrobatic Entertainers." They are to present an offering consisting of bumps and falls from tables and barrels, that is not only funny but amazingly daring.

"The Bear Cat," from the pen of Willard Mack and presented by Fred C. Hagan & Co. has things happening thick and fast, making this playlet a laughing success. Two other acts are offered, one a blackface and the other a novelty western divertisement.

THE GATEWAY

William Fox presents Tom Mix the graduate of western etiquette, in "Oh! You Tony!" at the Gateway theatre today and Saturday. Mix's horse Tony, rightly called the wonder horse, has a leading part in the picture and shows up to great advantage. There will be the usual matinee Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, together with the night shows.

DOBINSON PLAYERS

Glendale is taking rank as a producing center. This city had a peep at "Barnum Was Rght," the hilarious comedy which is playing this week at Glendale Playhouse, before any other place on the Pacific coast. While it was a knockout in New York, Los Angeles producers overlooked it. Consequently, many Los Angeles people have been coming over nightly to see what George Cohan himself believes to be one of the best and happiest things he has ever done.

A great deal of interest is aroused in the jewels from the Old Manor House of the play, the string of pearls that are to be given to some lucky person at the close of the run Saturday night. "Barnum Was Right" will play a Saturday matinee and will close with the evening performance Saturday, to be succeeded by another play new to the entire west "The Ruined Lady."

Glendale people are beginning to realize that the Playhouse and the Dobinson Players are a local institution and that local support is vital if this competent organization, giving delightful plays in a finished manner, is to continue.

"If we can interest Glendale people thoroughly," declares Director Fred J. Butler, "why, in a few weeks the fame of the Dobinson Players will be bringing scores and hundreds from Los Angeles, Hollywood, and all the surrounding towns. And it looks as though this desirable state of affairs is on the threshold."

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND TEACHER'S RUBBER

One day, when Uncle Wiggily was hopping past the hollow stump school he saw the Lady Mouse Teacher run out on the front steps, rubbing her tiny paws together and squeaking:

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear! Oh, dear! It's too bad!"

"What's the matter?" asked the bunny gentleman, hopping quickly to the side of the Lady Mouse, but taking care not to step on her long tail. "Is the Woozie Wolf or the Fuzzy Fox in the school, and are the animal children afraid?"

"Nothing quite as sad as that has happened, Uncle Wiggily, thank you for asking," squeaked the Lady Mouse.

"Then why did you say 'Oh, dear!' so woefully?" the bunny wanted to know.

"Because the animal children make so many mistakes in their writing and drawing lessons," said the Lady Mouse, "and I have nothing with which to rub them out. I mean rub out the mistakes," she made haste to say, "for of course I wouldn't rub out one of my little pupils—not even Baby Bunty, though she is a mischievous tyke."

"I know she is!" chuckled the bunny gentleman. "But I am glad to hear you say you wouldn't want to rub out even her. However, as for rubbing out the writing and drawing mistakes the animal children make—why can't you do it?"

"Because I have no rubber—no large piece of rubber for an eraser, Uncle Wiggily," was the reply. "Really, I need a big rubber—not the kind to wear in the rain, but a pencil rubber."

Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose very fast and cried:

"You shall have it!"

He meant the Lady Mouse would have the rubber, not his pink, twinkling nose, which he needed himself.

"Where can you get me a rubber?" asked the Lady Mouse.

"I'll hop to the store and buy it," said the bunny, and he was soon on his way. He bought an extra large piece of rubber, which would take out of paper mistakes made in drawing or writing with a pencil and, holding the rubber in his paws, he started to hop back to the hollow stump school.

The bunny uncle had not gone very far before, all of a sudden, out of the bushes from beside the path crawled the Skillery, Scallery Alligator with the double-jointed tail.

"Where are you going, Uncle Wiggily?" asked the 'Gator, which I call him for short, though, as I have remarked before, he was quite long.

"I am going to school!" answered the rabbit.

"Pooh! Nonsense! As if a rabbit of your age would go to school!" laughed the 'Gator. "If I believe that I s'pose you'll tell me another. You aren't going to school at all!"

"Where am I going?" asked Uncle Wiggily, shivery like.

"I'm going to take you to my den!" growled the 'Gator, and with that Uncle Wiggily dropped the big piece of rubber he had for the Lady Mouse. The rubber fell on the hard ground, bounced up and hit the Alligator in his left eye.

"Stop that!" howled the bad chap.

Down fell the rubber again, and when it bounced up once more it struck the 'Gator in his right eye.

"Oh, stop!" howled the bad chap. "I'm not going to play if you throw bouncing stones at me all the while!" and flopping his tail around, away he ran, while Uncle Wiggily laughed and the rubber bounced up once more, being caught by the rabbit gentleman.

Then, before anything more could happen, Mr. Longears hopped back to the school with the rubber for the Lady Mouse Teacher. She rubbed out the mistakes the animal children made and everyone was happy except the Skillery Scallery Alligator with the double-jointed tail, and he didn't deserve to be, did he?

So if the scissors don't cut the tail off the needle and thread when they're trying to sew up the holes in the Swiss cheese, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Peetie's paints.

SALARY ROLL FOR BROOKLYN LARGE

High Priced Players To Take Field This Year; Expect To Win Pennant

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 13.—The salary roll of the Brooklyn National league club for 1925 exceeds $200,000, it was declared today by a close friend of Charley Ebbetts, president and majority stockholder of the club. Six of the squire's employes, exclusive of Manager Wilbert Robinson, will receive in excess of $7,000 per annum, this friend of Ebbetts said.

The favored sextette, it is understood, consists of Dazzy Vance, the league's leading pitcher; Burleigh Grimes, human salivary gland; Jack Fournier, first baseman; Zach Wheat, star outfielder; Milton Stock, who may or may not make the grade at third base, and Jimmy Johnston.

Vance has been offered a three-year contract for $47,500 and intimates he might accept same if the squire will strike out the ten day clause. It does not seem to have occurred to Dazzy that he might do well to sign with all haste before the squire thinks better of it.

Grimes Wants More

Grimes, they say, had been tendered a two-year contract for $14,000. He wants $15,000 or so. He, too, seems to have forgotten Mr. Ebbetts' notable lack of carelessness in money matters. Fournier is said to have uncovered a system whereby he can eke out an existence on a two-year contract, signed in 1924, and calling for an advance of $4,000.

These are box car numbers of purest ray serene, but no one appears to be concerned about it. One and severally, even down, or up, as the case may be, to Robbie himself, they declare it will all come back to its natural home in Mr. Ebbetts' pocket when the Dodgers win the 1925 pennant.

Yes, the Dodgers have the pennant bee. They claim they will either win or the club that does will think it is being chased by Nurmi. It is their idea that a team which almost won last year in the stretch after breaking up its infield in mid-season, should come home on the bit with the cast intact over a full season. They think so well of themselves, in fact, that they have made few changes, except to acquire "Cotton" Tierney from Boston and permit the Washington Senators to take title to "Dutch" Reuther.

Infield Lineup

At present the infield is lining up as it finished the 1924 season, to wit: Fournier, first base; High, second base; Mitchell, shortstop; Stock, third base. If the latter doesn't hit he will be replaced without ceremony by Tierney, who is being made over into a third baseman. Johnston is playing shortstop on the second team so that he can be moved into Johnny Mitchell's shoes in case Johnny does a flop, as is more or less anticipated.

Wheat will adorn left field; Ed Brown will play center field, porcelain arm and all, and in right field it is altogether likely the veteran Tom Griffith will be crowded to the wall by Dick Cox. The latter hit twenty-five homers for Portland last year and looks the part of a real ball player. The regular catchers will be Deberry and Taylor, as of yore.

PLAN EXHIBITION ON PUNCHING BAG

Byron Fry, Inventor of New Platform, to Appear at Cornwell & Kelty

Byron Fry, premier bag puncher, health expert, physical culturist and inventor, will show Glendalians the correct way to gain health through the use of a punching bag and a special platform invented by him. The demonstrations will be given tomorrow in a window at the Cornwell & Kelty hardware store, 107 South Brand boulevard, 12 to 1 o'clock, 3 to 5 o'clock and 7 to 9 o'clock.

Fry, who appeared several years in vaudeville and toured the United States, has a standing challenge to meet any bag puncher for the championship of the world, and claims the championship of America. One of his vaudeville stunts was punching a bag while walking a slack wire.

The platform Fry will use in his demonstrations is one he invented, and which can be used in any home. It is a Glendale product, invented by a Glendale man and manufactured in Glendale. Questions pertaining to bag punching and it's effect upon one's health will be answered by Fry during the demonstration hours.

LAWRENCE PERRY SAYS

NEW YORK, March 13.—It is now practically certain that a lot of these records that have been hung up by Nurmi and Willie Ritola this winter will not be officially recognized as world's records.

This is to say that many of the distances run by these men, distances that never before have figured in track meets or in the record books will not receive official mention. Informal comment to date by men prominent in the A. A. U. leads to this belief.

At the same time no effort has been made to discourage the efforts of promoters to give spectators that thrill which comes of record shattering achievement by dividing distances into eighths and quarter miles and so on.

What will probably happen will be the incorporation of the records for unrecognized distances under the heading, "noteworthy performances of 1925" or something of the sort.

Up town today gossip was running wild concerning a reported intention on the part of Nurmi to become a citizen of the United States. The only foundation this appears to have had was Paavo's silence upon the subject.

But, since he is silent upon every subject, there was not the slightest reason why any significance should have been attached to his reticence on this matter.

The truth is that Nurmi has not the slightest intention of expatriating himself and this information comes from a source convincingly high. He will shortly be homeward bound and probably glad that he is.

BALL PARK WILL REOPEN MARCH 22

M. R. Bacom Will Reorganize Glendale Merchants, To Play Buick Autos

The old Glendale White Sox baseball park on San Fernando road, the scene of many thrilling games last season, when the local team set a new semi-pro record for Southern California by winning twenty-six straight games, will be re-opened on March 22, according to an announcement made today by M. R. Bacom, prominent baseball man of Glendale.

When the park is re-opened, a new team will take the field, to be known as the Glendale Merchants, Bacom announces. Glendalians will be members of the team, and the best diamond talent that can be found here will represent Glendale, he said.

The Buick Autos, known throughout Southern California as one of the strongest semi-pro teams in this vicinity, will be the opponents of the Glendale Merchants on the opening day. The Buick Autos have won their last nineteen games, copped the pennant in the Industrial league and upset the hopes of many other teams. Admission to the ball park will be free for the first few games, and when the fans become acquainted with the players, a nominal charge of 25 cents admission will be made.

Put in New Seats

The old grandstand, partially destroyed by fire last winter, has been torn down and the debris was burned today. New seats will be installed, Manager Bacom announces, and the diamond put into first-class shape for the opening game. The old White Sox uniforms have been purchased by Manager Bacom, and will be worn by the new team.

Bacom will manage the team until the middle of May, when he will leave for Eldora, Ia., where he will manage a semi-pro team. He was manager of the Burbank team last winter and built up a strong team there. After taking charge of the team he made several changes, with the result that the Burbank crew won practically all of its games.

Bacom worked last summer as umpire in the Minnesota-Iowa league, and called balls and strikes in the territory he expects to cover next season with the Eldora team.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 13.—Mrs. H. D. (Sallie) Sterrett, four times winner of the Kansas State Women's Golf championship, and the present Missouri valley titleholder, is a player for whom national aspirants will have to look out this season. She came into her own here in winning the qualifying round of the first annual Florida east coast women's championship with a wonderful card of 82, a course record for women.

The remarkable part of Mrs. Sterrett's round was that she had an eight on the four par sixth hole. But for this she would have had a perfect card and undoubtedly would have been under 80.

A pupil of Stewart Maiden, of Atlanta, the professional who taught Alexa Stirling and Bobby Jones, Mrs. Sterrett is one of the soundest stylists of the country's women players. Her chief handicap in the past three years has been her lack of tournament experience.

The Kansas star has had a fine record since coming to Florida a month ago. In that time she has won the Miami beach championship and the Ormond women's tournament. At Belleair last week she was beaten by little Bernice Wall, Wisconsin state titleholder, who also is entered in the present tournament along with a number of other stars, including Glenna Collett, Mrs. Alex Smith, Frances Hadfield, Harriet Ellison, Mrs. H. P. Turnbull, Ruth Perry and Mrs. Stewart Handley.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

(John B. Foster has completed the first leg of his tour of the training camps, having looked over the three National league teams which now are in California. He is on his way back east to see the other thirteen major league clubs in action at their southern camps.)

EL PASO, Texas, March 13.—En route to the southern training camps. The Chicago Cubs will have two of a kind in the pitcher's box this year. One is a right-hander and the other a left-hander, but Alexander and Cooper—right and left-handed respectively—in their time have been winners in baseball for the National league. And it is far from certain that their time is past.

Five years ago a manager of the National league who had been watching Alexander from the start of his career, said he would be out of the game in two seasons because his side-arm motion was pulling his arm out. Alexander is still pitching. The same manager predicted that Cooper would not last, but Cooper is still pitching and last year was a winner.

If this pair of veterans should turn up with forty victories between them in 1925 the Cubs will be giving somebody a battle for some seasons to come.

"I never have felt old age knocking in my elbow yet," he remarked to the writer, discussing his days with the Phillies and later with Chicago. "You can usually tell when your arm is going to back up on you. Walter Johnson said he knew when his was bad because he could not make the ball sail. If he did have a bad arm for two years, as it was said he had, it was not so bad that he could not pitch Washington into the championship last year, and I am pretty sure that I have got a bit of championship left in mine. When the ball won't break right for me for a week in succession, or for a fortnight, I shall begin to believe that I am through—but it will have to be fully that bad before I surrender."

If Cooper improves in his temperament by his shift from Pittsburgh to Chicago and if he should not be worried by other matters he will give the Cubs what they have greatly needed since 1918—a left-hander who is an every-day terror to opposing teams.

"I think I can win for this club," he said. "There is a lot of activity to it. Grimm and Maranville came along with me and I know both of them well and know what they can do for an infield. If I get a start that is anything like hopeful I am sure I can travel fast enough to help the Cubs a lot. My arm is good. I don't need to hurry it and I am not going to attempt to do so."

Cooper has no special grievance against Pittsburgh because he was permitted to go away from under the wing of Dreyfuss. He had been with Pittsburgh for a long time and he had been forced to listen to the gibes and jeers of the right-field crowd in Pittsburgh about as long as any player that Dreyfuss had on his team.

He may have been tired of it. It is enough to make a ball player tired to jab verbally and everlastingly when he is trying to do his best. Cooper is the type of player who may be benefitted by the change that was made for him without consulting him. Some players are very much better when they are taken out of a rut, even if they have been doing well.

Probably the best of the younger Cub pitchers is Root. He has a nice easy shoulder delivery, some speed, considering that he has not been asked to use much, and looks like a pitcher. "Bill" Veeck, president of the Cubs, gazed at him and sighed, "I wish we had ten more like him."

There is one player on the Cub team who must not be overlooked. He is Pittinger. He has been up before in the big leagues. After a trial he was sent to the Pacific Coast league. The atmosphere, food or whatever it is out here that changes the moods and the skill of ball players has worked its spell upon Pittinger. He looks little like the ball player who was sent away from the east. He fields like a streak, bats well and gives every indication of being a very live wire to put on the infield in case one of the Cubs gets injured.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP by FAIR PLAY

NEW YORK, March 13.—Paddy Mullins is willing to sign for a bout between his fighter, Harry Wills, and Tommy Gibbons, under certain conditions. This is the straight goods and all who may be interested in such a bout may take notice accordingly.

But there are stipulations and anyone who agrees to Paddy's conditions will find himself, or themselves, bound by them since Mullins is now under the advice of one of the shrewdest and highest priced lawyers in New York. Mullins, at least, will do battle with Gibbons, provided it is assured that the winner will have the opportunity of facing Dempsey.

Wills has had all sorts of promises in the past and has been fooled and bamboozled straight across the board. The next time promoters talk with him they will have to put their names on certain dotted lines on certain binding legal papers.

But, as the writer exclusively announced yesterday, there is more than a chance that Gibbons will not be available for a summer bout in New York because of prospects that California promoters will stage a Dempsey-Gibbons contest on the west coast.

The whole thing is mixed up and it will take some time to unravel it. In the meantime Wills may be expected to cherish and save his hands as much as possible until he gets into the ring with Dempsey, no matter who else he fights.

Harry's hands are not fragile as compared to the hands of the average heavyweight. But he hits harder than human bone and flesh can stand. One good fight, as say against Dempsey, where he has to hit out with all he has got will probably see the end of his maulies for good and all. But what about the boy who is on the receiving end up to the time they go to bust?

BASKETBALL RESULTS

The St. Mark's Y. P. F. basketball team defeated the Redeemer Presbyterians of Los Angeles Wednesday night in the Harvard High school gym. The score was 15 to 5. John Thelin was a heavy scorer for the winners, throwing four baskets. Siedel was credited with two baskets.

The lineup:

Hal Chase Will Form Mexican Ball League

BISBEE, Ariz., March 13.—"Within a year or two any baseball team that wishes to annex the title of world's champions must first defeat our team in a series of international games."

This was the statement today from Hal Chase, former White Sox first baseman, now operating a cafe at Agua Prieta, Sonora, Mexico, who has been approached by an official of the Mexican government with hopes of organizing a Mexican baseball league.

"I hope to put baseball in Mexico on a real sporting basis, free from commercialism, which is injuring the sport in America," Chase continued.

AXE WILL SWING

SHREVEPORT, La., March 13.—Eddie Collins is preparing to pare the White Sox slab staff from seventeen players to eight. The twirlers are putting curves on the ball now and in consequence there has been a big slump in hitting. The veterans continue to take things easy.

DEAL PENDING

AVALON, CATALINA, Calif., March 13.—A Cub-Cardinal deal seems to be in the making. Sam Breadon, aide for Branch Hickey of the Cardinals, visited the Cub camp and is said to be in need of a pitcher. The Cubs need an outfielder who can hit.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service

NEW YORK, March 13.—Stock market conditions today were little changed from those of the previous session. Another violent decline in prices of wheat and rye at Chicago and Winnipeg helped to unsettle the other speculative markets and bearish traders hammered the stock market. They concentrated on American Woolen and Radio Corporation in the early trading.

The pools were a little more aggressive and showed a willingness to absorb all the stock their favorites offered to them at concessions from the previous closing prices. In a few cases, they were strong enough to mark prices higher and to keep them at the higher levels. This was particularly true of American Can and Texas Gulf Sulphur.

A few of the oil stocks were pushed to the front in an attempt to attract speculative attention, but with no better success than in the last week or two.

Any effort to advance the oil stock is generally met with a deluge of offerings under the effect of which prices quickly react. Producers and Refiners and White Eagle Oil touched new low prices for the year today and most of the independent oils sold at or near the low point for the week.

Texas-Pacific, Frisco common, Reading, Rock Island and a few of the high priced dividend railroad stocks sold in good volume at advances of from 1 to 3½ points as the result of the favorable showing of traffic reports and the optimistic statement of President Gray of the Union Pacific lines.

Movements of St. Paul stocks are having little effect on the balance of the railroad share market. Declines in Missouri Pacific preferred and other stocks of this near-dividend class resulted from only light pressure of stock offerings.

Having advanced 12 points yesterday on the strength of the false reports of stock distribution of Radio shares, it was logical for General Electric to decline as abruptly when the rumor was officially denied. At 268, the stock showed a loss of 8½ points for the day. But it was still 3 points above Tuesday's close.

Baldwin, American Locomotive and other equipment and the industrial leaders were generally in retreat, as also were American Safety Razor and other specialty stocks which led the forward battalion last week.

Stock sales: 1,366,800 shares; bonds $12,189,000.

STEEL AT PEAK

NEW YORK, March 13.—Operations at some of the steel mills have reached the highest point since the peak period of 1918. Some mills are on 100 per cent of capacity production. The leading interest has been turning out ingots at about 94 per cent of capacity. Youngstown mills are running at 87 per cent, and it is estimated the independent producers, as a whole, are operating at 89 per cent or better.

It is doubtless true that production for the country has been ahead of consumption, but a tremendous number of orders were booked in February. Officials of the Carnegie Steel Co. declare the corporation is booked from six to eight months in advance.

There has been heavy buying of structural steel, and car equipment plants, agricultural equipment manufacturers and railroads have ordered good tonnages. Demand for oil well supplies also is improving. The bolt and nut business, which has been notoriously bad, is looking up.

These facts are of tremendous significance, not only to the steel centers, but throughout the whole country, since the steel industry is regarded as a reliable barometer of business prosperity in general.

M'CLINTOCK NET HOLDS SURPRISES

Wealthy Orphan's Death Is Near Solution; Doctor Springs Evidence

CHICAGO, March 13.—The McClintock death probe moved into what was believed might be its final stages today with lightning rapidity.

Three decisive moves, it was said, would be made within twelve hours as a result of the confession today of Dr. Charles C. Faiman, head of the National University of Science, in which he declared William D. Shepherd, foster father of William Nelson McClintock and chief beneficiary of his will, had been a "one week" student at his university and that when he left, three tubes of deadly germ culture had disappeared with him. The moves were to include:

Summoning of Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd to the state's attorney's office where they will be confronted with Dr. Faiman's statements.

A request to the grand jury from the state's attorney's office to take up the alleged "tampering" with witnesses.

Submission of the entire McClintock case to a grand jury without waiting for the coroner's report from the adjourned inquest.

Dr. Faiman today was held under guard at a local hotel while the state's attorney's office teemed with efforts to close the net in the long drawn out probe.

Shepherd flatly denied everything contained in Dr. Faiman's statement when seen by newspapermen today.

SUSPECT IN MAIL ROBBERY TRAPPED

Fugitive Circular Paves Way To Capture of Man Leaving Jail

SEATTLE, March 13.—Climaxing an amazing year during which he had twice walked out of the city jail here a free man after serving brief terms for petty offenses, James Nagle, 35, was returned to his cell and held in connection with the sensational daylight robbery of a United States mail truck in San Francisco April 7, 1924. Detective Sergeant Robert R. Herbert recognized Nagle as the man pictured on a fugitive circular offering a $2000 reward for the mail robber, just as Nagle was leaving police headquarters after serving a few days on a charge of drunkeness.

Mail Robbery Suspect

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—John Nagle is wanted in San Francisco in connection with the $40,000 robbery of a mail truck on April 7 of last year. William Crowe and Don Morris, who inspectors said participated in the robbery with Nagle are both under arrest. A fourth man, Harry Sullivan, is being sought.

The mail truck was en route from the ferry postoffice to the main office when the four men in a touring car drew up alongside the truck and demanded the driver to get in their car. Then, one of the bandits drove the truck to a barn and removed several registered mail sacks. All four men have been indicted by the federal grand jury.

Provides Entertainment

MILLIE MARLOWE, who presents the Motor Girls, a clever revue, at the Glendale Auto Show, has surrounded herself with an array of talent that is finding favor with the thousands who are attending the event nightly.

Millie Marlowe, who heads the Motor Girls at the first automobile show of the Glendale Motor Car Dealers' association, led this clever troupe of pretty and talented entertainers through another sprightly revue last night at the big tent on Brand boulevard at Magnolia avenue. "Springtime," "The Call of the Open Road" and other vocal numbers were mingled with jazz and classical dances, eccentric and comedy numbers, featuring Hazel Boyd and Willis West.

While this vivacious troupe pranced behind the footlights, the $200,000 exhibit of 100 fine motor cars temporarily took second place. There were no "duds" in the program. Every number registered a distinct hit and exploded with a sharp burst of applause. The revue went on at 9 o'clock and continued three-quarters of an hour. When it was over the audience of 3000 returned to its inspection of the cars—and once again King Motor reigned supreme.

NORTHWEST LAYS REFOREST PLANS

Large Timber Interests to Await Experiments In Resupplying Trees

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, March 13—Large timber interests of this country have come to the conclusion that their timber lands are like a bank deposit—they cannot continue to take out without putting in. In consequence extensive plans for the reforestation of the Pacific northwest now are under way under the lead of the Weyerhauser Timber Co., one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world.

The United States government is taking an intensive interest in the programs outlined and many larger timber companies in western Oregon are withdrawing their cut-over lands for sale while they await the results of the reforestation experiments. Already some work of this character has been undertaken in western Oregon and is proving successful. The companies which control thousands of acres of logged-off lands now hope that by reforesting these properties they can make them more profitable than by selling them to farmers.

Virgin Timber Sold

The government in the last few months has sold thousands of acres of virgin timber in the northwest, but, as a result of the reforestation policy, not an acre has been sold without a proviso for reforestation. Government officials now assert that as a result of the present trend the forests of Oregon and Washington where the largest supply of American timber now is found, never will become bare.

The program of the Weyerhauser Co. already has provided available for pulp and the reduction of waste in making pulp now amounting to 45 per cent of the original wood, are essential supplementary measures.

If the pulp and lumber industries were to be integrated, federal officials points out the saw mills' waste of species suitable for pulpwood would furnish about 15,000,000 cords annually, which would more than meet all pulpwood requirements in this country.
